Next Tuesday, those of us who exercise our voting franchise will once again go to the polls, pull on the levers, and hope for the best.

This election will determine who will serve as President and Vice President for the next four years. Most of us have become aware of the issues in this national contest. Most of us have already made up our minds.

There's been a great deal of discussion in our community about the candidates and what each would do to or for us. Some of that thinking is reflected in this week's Viewpoint.

The statewide membership of LAGPAC (Louisiana Gay Political Action Caucus) has voted to endorse Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro for these offices, primarily on the strength of the gay rights plank of the Democratic Party Platform.

But in addition to the national aspect of this election, there are two local races and one tax measure that deserve our attention.

In a run-off for a position on the Orleans Parish School Board, Gail Moore Glapion has expressed views and an ideology that deserves our support. In a run-off election for Juvenile Court Judge, Ernestine Gray likewise deserves our support.

Perhaps the most important local issue facing us is the "Earnings Tax" measure appearing on Tuesday's ballot.

New Orleans Mayor Ernest "Dutch" Morial warns that, without the tax, the city faces a $60 million budget shortfall next year. Even if we allow for the hyperbole that is generally so much a part of these warnings, we have to face the fact that the City of New Orleans does indeed have a revenue crisis of gargantuan proportions.

Up until now, the City has relied heavily on the sales tax to generate funding. The current temporary 1% hike expires in May. Most political experts allow that the chances of extending that 1% hike is remote. Our sales tax is the highest in the nation. It is a repressive tax, hitting hardest those who can least afford it.

Most localities rely on the property tax to pay for education and municipal services. Not so localities in Louisiana. The state homestead exemption, combined with ludicrously low assessments of property — both residential and commercial, keep property tax collections at a minimum.

Around the Clock believes that a fair property tax system would be the best way to finance our municipal requirements. But we realize that the task of educating the public to that way of thinking will take many years, if not many decades.

While we believe that the Earnings Tax measure may not be the most popular course for voters, we also believe that it is time that we faced the fact that municipal services need to be financed in an equitable way. We cannot afford to give up our public transit system. We cannot afford to let our streets fall into greater disrepair. We cannot afford to allow our undereducated, undertrained, underprofessional police department become less of the same. We cannot afford to allow our school system to deteriorate further. We cannot afford to give up those minimal health and human services now offered by our city.

What we can afford to do is to realize that "we get what we pay for." And, in spite of any personal antipathies to new taxes, we can bite the bullet and vote for the Earnings Tax. ♦

AND JUSTICE FOR ALL?

In reading numerous local and national gay publications I have seen very little discussion of this year's Presidential Election and I think it is appalling.

While gays are flexing political muscle in many local elections there seems to be little or no effort to discuss the national campaign and how the positions of the candidates relate to gays.

Perhaps our political leaders and gay editors just assume we will all vote Democratic since that party has included a plank in its platform affirming our right to be first class citizens while the Republicans have not.

But there are many gays who are now planning to vote for Reagan and many more who are so apathetic they may not bother to go to the polls.

In the past it has made little difference to gay rights who was occupying the White House.

No one there has taken a firm stand for our rights, and even in this election it has not become a national issue. But the issue which is important to gays and which has become part of the national debate now going on, is the direction the United States Supreme Court will take in the years ahead.

By Inauguration Day, five members of the current court will be 76 or older, meaning that the winner of the election will probably have the chance to appoint at least three or four new justices.

Jerry Falwell, assuming victory for Reagan, has already chortled that, "We should get two or three."

Given the conservative leanings of the present court, this could spell disaster for our efforts to gain our rights via the courts.

No minority struggling for its rights has made serious progress until it has gained some favorable ruling from the Supreme Court. Brown v. Board of Education, the 1954 high court decision that outlawed segregation in the public schools, provided the impetus for the civil rights struggle that finally, after a hundred years, set blacks free of second class citizenship.

Similarly in 1973, Roe v. Wade abolished state laws against abortion and became a watershed in the women's movement.

During their 1975 term the Supreme Court was forced to consider the rights of homosexuals for the first time. A three-judge district panel had voted 2 to 1 to uphold a Virginia anti-sodomy law that outlawed homosexual acts, including those performed in private by consenting adults.

Federal law requires the Court to accept appeals from three-judge panels but only three justices (Brennan, Marshall and Stevens) voted to grant oral arguments while the others wanted the lower court decision affirmed summarily.

And that is what they did in a four word statement, "The judgement is affirmed" thereby passing up an opportunity to offer reasons for their decision.

In 1980 the Court refused to review a decision by the Supreme Court of the State of New York in the case of New York

HAVE YOU HUGGED YOUR TEDDY

v. Onofre in which it was held that the right of privacy did extend to private sexual conduct between adults and voided that state's sodomy statute.

But then last session they took up a similar case, New York v. Uplinger. Robert Uplinger of Buffalo had been arrested and charged with public loitering for the purpose of soliciting an act of consensual sodomy following a 15 minute conversation with a man who turned out to be a plain clothes vice officer.

The New York Court of Appeals had thrown out his conviction and voided the loitering provision, characterizing the loitering law as a "companion statute to the consensual sodomy statute" — a section of the penal law judicially invalidated earlier in the Onofre decision.

In appealing this decision to the U.S. Supreme Court, Erie County District Attorney Arcara asked the justices not to seize the opportunity to reverse the previous ruling in Onofre.

The Court voted 5 to 4 to let stand the New York State ruling in the Uplinger case but, in an opinion released last May, they sidestepped the underlying issues.

"We are persuaded," that opinion said, "that this case provides an inappropriate vehicle for resolving the important constitutional issues raised by the parties."

Important questions about the rights of gay men and women — the right to immigrate into this country, to serve in the armed forces, to be secure in one's job, to qualify for security clearances, and more — are now being argued in the lower courts.

A victory in a District Court or even a Circuit Court of Appeals is not the final word. Only when the Supreme Court has ruled can any of these questions be resolved, and a series of unfavorable rulings by the high court could slam the door on the progress we have been slowly making in our fight to gain our civil rights through legal action.

Robert Bork, Reagan's first appointment to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, is the favorite to fill the next opening on the Supreme Court during a Reagan presidency.

This is the same judge who recently wrote the unanimous opinion of a three-member federal appeals panel (all Republicans) which rejected the claims of James L. Dronenburg who had been discharged from the Navy in 1981 for homosexual conduct.

In rejecting Dronenburg's charges that his constitutional right to privacy and equal protection under the law had been violated by the Navy, Judge Bork wrote, "Nowhere in the text, structure or history of the Constitution is there any 'right to privacy' that would protect homosexual conduct," and "legislation may implement morality."

Antonin Scalia, another D. C. Circuit Court judge who voted with Bork in the Dronenburg case, is also mentioned as a possible Reagan appointee to the high court along with the current Attorney General, William French Smith, and Reagan cronies William Clark and Ed Meese.

With so many gay issues likely to come before the Supreme Court for review in the years ahead, we cannot allow Reagan and Jerry Falwell to pack the Court with men who, like Bork, see homosexuals as deviates who have no civil rights.

And the only way to prevent him from doing just that is to be certain he is not elected to a second term. No matter how we feel about his handling of the economy or foreign affairs, all gays must reject him.

The new justices who will be appointed to the Court in the next four years will likely serve into the next century. Our personal lives and the supreme law of the land will be shaped by the President who names them to the bench.

HELLO ATLANTA!!!

It's happened again! In October, Around the Clock entered the Dallas community, extending its area of service westward. And now, in November, it's eastward bound for ATC! With this issue, Around the Clock begins distribution in Atlanta, Georgia, and areas of Alabama not reached until now.

Around the Clock is fast becoming an integral part of the lives of many of our brothers and sisters throughout the South.

It's like we've been saying all along. "It's about time" for a quality publication to deliver news, features and information to our community on a weekly basis! From the response from our readers, we get the impression we're doing something right!

What follows is the first of many regular columns by contributors in Atlanta. — Editor

Hello, Atlanta!

Since most of you may not be familiar with me, nor with this publication, let me take this opportunity to introduce myself, as well as Around the Clock.

Although Around the Clock is a new publication to the Atlanta area, it has been around the gulf south since February, 1984, and has an estimated readership of over 20,000 per issue.

It is published on a weekly basis.

Because of the high commitment of the publishers to produce a top-quality publication, the popularity and reputation of the magazine has been rapidly growing, as evidenced by a recent article about New Orleans in The Advocate.

At present Around the Clock is distributed in eight southern states.

In addition to keeping you informed about Atlanta's night life, Around the Clock will also provide you with up-to-date news coverage focusing on significant aspects of gay life within the Atlanta area as well as within other gay communities in the gulf south (and throughout the nation).

They will also provide you with feature articles you will find interesting and entertaining.

For myself, I have been a member of Atlanta's gay community over the past 12 years. I feel honored to have been invited by the publishers of Around the Clock to introduce you to this fine magazine. We must remember that, as members of the gay community, we are still very much in the minority and must stand united together. In order for this to happen, we must have a means of keeping abreast of those issues of relevance to each of us and to have a forum for sharing and expressing our ideas and opinions.

Here is a perfect opportunity to do just that — if we just take advantage of it.

I will do my best as a member of Atlanta's gay community to contribute informative and newsworthy articles for publication. However, I can't do it alone. If you know of an issue or an event of interest or importance, get in touch. Individuals who may have an interest in contributing articles, either occasionally or regularly, are encouraged to call. Let's hear from you.

In Atlanta, write Geoffrey Allen, c/o Around the Clock, 1616 Piedmont Ave. N.E., Building O, Apt. 3, Atlanta, GA 30324, or call 876-3220. ♦

JERRY MENEFEES

Jerry Menefee, creator and owner of three of New Orleans' most popular clubs, died Wednesday, October 24th, after a long illness.

Buying a delapidated building at the corner of St. Ann and Bourbon in the French Quarter, Menefee renovated it and opened it as the Bourbon Pub, one of New Orleans' finest clubs.

Later work included opening The Parade Disco above the Pub.

In recent years Menefee was the builder of The Parade Disco in Houston before returning to New Orleans to renovate his most ambitious project, Menefee's.

Menefee's last project was the renovation of a building as his home on North Rampart.

A memorial service was held last Saturday morning at St. Anna's on Esplanade. ♦

Le Petit Theatre du Vieux Carré in a benefit designed to raise funds for The Sexual Privacy Project, a joint project of the Louisiana A.C.L.U., Crescent City Coalition and LAGPAC.

Crisp's arch, wry, and witty performance was enjoyed by the audience which nearly filled the theater.

Following the performance, most of the audience strolled over to Hits (formerly Lucky Pierre's), where complimentary cocktails were served.

The event was sponsored by Crescent City Coalition, whose president, John Ognibene, also serves as fundraising chairperson for the Sexual Privacy Project.

Ognibene said he was extremely pleased with the many people who took the time (and money) to help support the fundraiser.

He also noted that he was gratified that a new business would extend itself to the community in such a significant way.

Ognibene said that Hits' owners, Charles Napoli and Buddy Arnold, had been extremely cooperative in planning the event, which included a private after-theatre supper for those who purchased special $50 tickets to the event.

Those who attended the dinner commented on the excellence of the food and service. Several noted that it was really great to have an entertainment complex that was as elegantly appointed as Hits, but where they were made to feel welcome in comfortable, casual attire.

The Sexual Privacy Project has been organized to challenge Louisiana's "crime against nature" statutes. The group at present has six plaintiffs in the court challenge, which, according to coordinating attorney R. James Kellogg, will be filed mid-month.

Tax-deductible contributions to the Project may be made payable to: A.C.L.U. Sexual Privacy Project, 346 Baronne St., Suite 324, New Orleans, LA 70112. ♦ leaving his post because of opposition from fundamentalist Christian groups over the handling of other duties, including administering programs for teenage abortions.

A Baptist Sunday School teacher from Texas, Brandt will take over as Chancellor for the University of Maryland on December 1.

In April, Brandt had to cancel an appearance at the Fund for Human Dignity dinner in New York, after a Christian group, the American Life Lobby, telegraphed President Reagan that Brandt should be fired if he attended the gay event.

Brandt reportedly was "appalled" by the willingness of these religious groups to play politics with human lives, according to a report in The New York Native.

Brandt had pushed for increased funding for AIDS research for two years only to be rebuffed by the White House.

But Brandt's recommendations found their way to Congress which used them in passing $85 million for AIDS research for the current fiscal year. ♦

AIDS HAS COST $1 BILLION IN CARE

Medical experts have estimated that more than $1 million has been spent on caring for persons with AIDS, according to the Boston Globe.

The Globe quoted an epidemiologist for the city of Boston, George Seage, who said in the copyrighted story, "We are talking about an incredible cost epidemic that's going to put an incredible stress on the medical care system."

Medicaid, Medicare and Social Security are paying most of the bill, the report continued, because most persons with AIDS face loss of employment and health insurance, and have to rely on state and federal programs for assistance.

That means hospitals are only reimbursed for 70 percent of the cost of the care. They must cover the other 30 percent from their own budgets. This has created a financial burden on many hospitals.

In New York City, more than 60 percent of AIDS patients spend more than a third of their time in the hospital, with 40 percent more than half, according to a report in The New York Native.

San Francisco Health Director Dr. Mervyn Silverman has gone so far as to call for regional centers funded by the Federal government to help care for persons with AIDS. ♦

TEEN KILLERS GET 40 MONTHS

Three teenagers convicted of killing a Bangor, Maine gay by throwing him into a river even though he couldn't swim, have been sentenced to the Maine Youth Center, where the most any of them will have to serve is 40 months.

The three, James Baines, 15; Shawn Mabry 16 and Daniel Ness, 17 were sentenced as juveniles to the Maine facility, but they must be released on their 21st birthday.

If tried as adults the three could have been sentenced for up to 25 years. ♦

LESBIAN SUES NATIONAL GUARD

A lesbian who says she was involuntarily discharged from the California Air National Guard has sued for violation of her First Amendment rights.

Lieutenant Julise Johnson, who had served in the U.S. Air force and the National Guard, was discharged after writing a letter to her commanding officer admitting she is a lesbian.

Johnson, even though she was aware of regulations requiring the discharge of homosexuals, wrote that she felt that she should be direct and honest with her commander, according to a report in The New York Native.

A week after writing the letter she was informed by the Deputy Commanding General of the Air National Guard that an administrative discharge had been initiated.

Following a hearing in December, 1983 Johnson was discharged.

The American Civil Liberties Union of Northern California and the Lesbian Rights Project have filed suit to seek Johnson's reinstatement. ♦

COURT RULING MAY KILL MINNEAPOLIS GAY RIGHTS LAW

A court decision in the case of a black man discriminated against by the University of Minnesota might have the effect of killing the Minneapolis gay and lesbian rights ordinance.

A judge has ruled that since an earlier court decision involving a black did not allow the city to pass civil rights ordinance stronger than the state's civil rights law, then protecting gay men and lesbians in the city ordinance, when they aren't protected by state law, is illegal.

District Judge A. Paul Lomann made the decision in a case where Dale Fuller, a black, filed an anti-discrimination complaint against the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis.

When a University employee was subpoenaed by the city, the University fought the subpoena, saying that they were exempt from the ordinance.

The judge agreed, and went further in ruling that, since Minnesota law gave the city the power to pass a human rights ordinance covering the same groups that were covered by state law, and that since the law allows the city to regulate only itself, then it couldn't regulate the state.

Gay activists fear that this means that the provisions of the city's ordinance protecting them from discrimination may be illegal, since they have so such protection under state law.

In order to get a decision, they are appealing a case involving two gays who say they were discriminated against in a health club, whose owner is a born-again Christian, and who posted what he called "anti-sodomite regulations." ♦

DEUKMAJIAN SIGNS ANTI VIOLENCE BILL

California Gov. George Deukmajian has signed into law a bill allowing gay men and lesbians, who are the victims of violence, to sue their attackers.

Deukmajian signed Assembly Bill 848, which was similar to another bill which he vetoed earlier this year, after a series of attacks on gays in San Francisco. Deukmajian said, "I don't believe anyone should be singled out for violent attacks for any reason."

Under the bill, if an attack is motivated by sexual orientation, the victim can sue for up to $10,000, plus damages.

It covers both actual attacks and threats of physical violence. The law becomes effective January 1. ♦

I love the trivia craze we're going through. I've been going through it almost all my life. I've been a trivia nut since Saturday afternoon serials were the rage and a two-pound nickel box of popcorn satisfied your munchies.

I sell the stuff-that-trivia-is-made-of, nostalgia. I specialize in the past hundred years of what-was-once-called Pop Culture. My partner and I travel around the USA hawking comic books, movie material and oodles of oddments.

Almost every convention we attend, be it S-F, Comic Book, Movie or Toys, has its Trivia Contest, and there I am, trapped for several hours while we all try to stump each other. One of my favorites is: Whistle the theme to The Whistler radio show. (If anyone can do it, award yourself a double no prize.)

This does not mean, however, that I in any way enjoy being asked Terribly Tedious Trivia Teasers at all times. Far from it! I abhor it! You'll bore me to death if you try.

A good Trivia Contest, however, is another story. That's why I am a dedicated fan of good daytime game shows. If you are a game show fan too, my puzzles will be a snap for you.

Some questions will be similar to those from Jeopardy, but most will be similar to Tic Tac Dough. None will be lifted from Love Connection.

(The program director at Channel 6 really had to stoop when he scheduled Love Connection and Newlywed Game every weekday! Nuff said.)

The past five weeks I've tried to torment you a bit with some stumbers. If anyone got ALL the previous questions right, pat yourself on the back, pick yourself up and award yourself The Grand No Prize!

Relax! The purpose of this contest is to have fun, and possibly win a prize or two along the way. Play along, you're sure to learn a lot of trivia. Of that I garrantee.

The OFFICIAL Terribly Tedious Trivia Teasers Contest Rules are as follows:

Each week we will publish a different Teaser Contest. Each will consist of a series of trivia puzzlers whose answers will in turn help you to solve the Teaser-of-the-Week, the name of a famous person, title of a book or movie, etc. The first letter of each answer, when unscrambled, will spell the Teaser title.

Following each set of questions there will be a series of empty spaces telling you the number of words and letters in each final answer.

The number of spaces in each answer tells you the number of letters in that answer. Usually famous people will be referred to by their last name, but not always.

All punctuation will be supplied.

Here's a sample puzzle to show you how they work. (I'll give the answers in parentheses following the question.)

1. and Abner (The answer is LUM)
2. Swooner-crooner from 40s (for the human toothpick, SINATRA)
3. I enjoy destroying Tokyo and other monsters (Goody, goody, it's GODZILLA again)
4. N.O. in '69 "searching for America" (EASY RIDER, natch!)
5. My friend (is IRMA)
6. They finally got revenge (Let's hear it for the NERDS)

7. AM and FM (is RADIO)
 8. Dewey, Mike, Mickey and Peter (are the MONKEES)
- TEASER ANSWER IS: (Unscrambling the first letters of each of the eight answers, L, S, G, E, I, N, R, M, we come up with the solution: GREMLINS. It's just as easy as that!

I wish you the best of luck. Here's how to answer Contest No. 1: List your puzzler answers in numerical order, together with your Teaser final solution on a postcard, together with your name, address and phone number to: TTTT Contest No. 1, Around the Clock, P.O. Box 70377, New Orleans, LA 70172. Your answer must be postmarked not later than November 8, 1984. Winners (and answers) will appear in the November 23rd issue.

Earliest postmark with correct answers wins. In case of a tie, the winner will be drawn from correct answers.

The prize for this week's solution is a beautiful one-sheet movie poster from Forever Female, starring Ginger Rogers and William Holden. It dates from 1953, and as with all prizes awarded, is an original, not a reprint. Each is a true collectors item.

Bone up on your Trivia and play along each week. I can't guarantee that we can publish all the names of people who submit correct solutions, but maybe so.

I plan on keeping tabs on everyone who gets each puzzle correct because I want to know who my competition is. I can only do this if you enter each week. Invest 13¢ and play along.

Don't bother to look for the answers to last week's questions. I'm going to hold you in suspense for one more issue.

I leave you with my second opinion of the week: the three best FM stations in New Orleans are WWNO, WWOZ and WTUL. If you're not listening to them, you're not really listening. ♦

UNION LEADER SUPPORTS GAY RIGHTS BILL

A leader of the 50,000 member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, (AFSCME) has come out in support of a New York City gay rights bill, which has been bottled up in city council committee for several years.

Victor Gotbaum of the District 37 Council of AFSCME, told the Human Rights Campaign Fund that his local would continue to support the bill.

Those who oppose the bill "know nothing about love," Gotbaum said, according to a report in The New York Native.

He continued, "If any son-of-a-bitch in that City Council doesn't support that gay rights bill, we are not going to support them." We must punish our enemy, because, in essence, they punish us."

Mayor Edward Koch was heckled by a straight as he defended his administration's record on recruiting gay police and fire fighters.

The man screamed "Woe to you Ed Koch" and about child abuse in several city day care centers, before being restrained. ♦

GAYS WORSE THAN MURDERERS, SO-CALLED SEX EXPERT SAYS

Gay males are worse than murderers, a supposed sex expert has said. "They are spreading one of most monstrous 'plagues' the world has ever seen."

Dr. Paul Cameron, Chairman of the Institute for Scientific Investigation of Sexuality, of Lincoln, Nebraska, made the comments in an article in the national tabloid Weekly World News.

Cameron calls on the government to require the registration of all homosexuals so that their movements can be tracked to halt the growing threat of AIDS, the report in the October 30 issue of the newspaper, which is available in supermarkets and newsstands, said.

"This terrible disease is costing the American taxpayers $7 million a week for treatment," Cameron said.

Cameron recently testified against a gay rights job protection bill before the Maine Human Rights Commission saying that the bill would "allow them (gays) to get a better crack at our kids, handle our food and blood." ♦

BRIEFING

"It would legitimize people who are doing something socially worthless," Cameron, a doctor of sociology from the University of Colorado said.

Cameron, the father of an allegedly "straight" boy, said that if he was found to be gay, he would be disowned.

The Cameron story moved New Orleans resident Frank Distasio to write the author of the piece in the Weekly World News, Jack Alexander, a letter in which he complained that such reporting was doing nothing to help the situation and in fact was continuing a growing hysteria over the disease. ♦

AUNT ESTHER WOWS THEM AT SKEETER'S

"Aunt Esther" of the Syndicated TV show Sanford and Son brought her comedy routine to Skeeter's in Montgomery October 11. It will definitely never be the same.

Lawanda Page, who played the Bible-toting thorn-in-the-side of Fred Sanford, showed she is anything but religious as she wowed the 250 person crowd with a XXX routine.

While on stage Ms. Page would throw her dress over the heads of a few unsuspecting spectators in the audience.

Hi Fi White, who was described by a member of the audience as "zany and hilariously vulgar" told a few stories which would curl your toes or reset your perm.

The performances of Page and White were enjoyed by everyone, with many hoping for a return visit to Montgomery soon. ♦

NOVEMBER 2-8

KEYWORD: "MONEY"

by Lawrence of New Orleans

FOR EVERY SIGN: A big, silver dollar moon takes shape, (as the week progresses,) in Taurus-the financial sector of the sky. The week begins with grandiose ideals concerning business ventures, but some down-to-earth measures are called for. Get rich quick schemes are out. Solid profit and sensible buying are in.

SCORPIO: Partnerships of all kinds prove to be profitable, (or costly) depending upon good judgement! Give a penny for your lover's thoughts. It could gather you interest, plus. (If your birthday is this week, the above lasts one year.)

SAGITTARIUS: You may be working especially hard for a living, but you can also do well for yourself. Sunday can be very satisfying for sharing luxuries. You could wind-up "short" later in the week.

CAPRICORN: Even at high noon, during the full moon, you horny "goats" will feel frisky as "kids" and ready to romp. Money will be up, "bullish," Mondayish, but down, or "bearish," Thursday.

AQUARIUS: Spend to improve comforts. Save by staying home with your favorite "million dollar baby." Work demands will tend to take more from your private time than you like.

PISCES: Talk dollars and sense. Make sound money decisions and keep a tight budget. Sunday is fine for recreation, including indoor sports. (Save for lunches during the week.)

ARIES: You can make out like a bandit financially and romantically this week with good timing. Pay close attention to what you spend on Saturday. The best things in life are free Tuesday.

TAURUS: Inventory your personal value and display your "treasures." Friday looks good for getting anything you're worth if you use charm. Attend more to material matters during the week.

GEMINI: Empty out your sugarbowl or mattress. Rob your piggy bank. It isn't doing any wood if it's not working for you. Get what you need. Use all your "assets" to best advantage on Wednesday.

CANCER: Make new friends and valuable contacts, who can turn you on to making money, (and other ways as well.) You can count on a week end romance, but budget your pleasure during the full moon.

LEO: Up Yours! (Earning power that is!) This is your time to catch up with the Jones', put equity in your home, or just put on the dog. Close ties are "shaky" before Monday, steadier after that.

VIRGO: An element of luck is yours if you invest in games of chance, (you name it,) just be sure you've got a good "system." If it's love you're out to score, midweek is best.

LIBRA: You can get modest loans, receive small payments, even gifts, or other "love offerings." If you want something badly, put in your own two cents, Saturday.

* ASK THE STARS *

Dear "No, Yes" —

Although a Gemini, you and your Cancer ex share a Leo Venus, a sure sign of "Two hearts that beat as one." (In reincarnation, his saturn in your twelfth means he teaches you a lesson in this life.) His Sun in your house of mates is atop Uranus, thus you're apt to go separate ways as you "advance" together. Happy Jupiter, now in your rising sign, (Capricorn,) is in a direct line with this area of your chart until April. This will stimulate a revival or help you both find a new lover.

Do you have any questions about the stars and how they affect you? Then simply write, including your birth date, year, town and time (if known,) to:
