Dear Diamond Lil,

Boyfriends and Girlfriends, are we judging "books by their covers" again? Have we thought about what may be inside? Do externals really mean more to us than internals? Are we knowing how to look below the surface? Or, is it just too much time and trouble? When it boils down to the nitty-gritty, do we think we can judge books and people by the way they happen to be packaged? Or, is fantasy more important than reality? Now, children, if there's something pressing at hand (or elsewhere), why not write Dear Diamond Lil, c/o Cruise Weekly, 729 Piedmont Ave. NE, Atlanta, GA 30308. Wouldn't this be a fine way to toss out unneeded rubbish?

Dear Diamond Lil,

I have a problem of a personal nature and I realize that at first reading, this is a "problem" that others would think they'd love to have. But, it keeps me out of bars and away from other gay social situations far too much.

My problem, Lil, is my looks and my body—both of which, I am told and am aware, are fabulous. I'm 31, incredibly handsome, and well built. That's as far as it goes. Yes, I know it, but that's it. It's like I know I have 15 sweaters, 14 pairs of shoes, or brown carpet in my living room.

In reality, I'm a serious, caring, professional. I have interest hobbies and am a caring, feeling person and one heck of a nice guy. I don't have problems with drugs or booze, and I care for and about others (sometimes, I think, too much).

Unfortunately, all others seem to know or see, even after knowing me for awhile, is my face and body. Oh, I get attention OK—all based on my physical attributes.

Lil, I want to be liked for me, not for the way I look. I'm also quiet and shy, which in other people's minds, translates into conceited, stuck on myself, or whatever. People don't usually approach me because of this or because of their own insecurities.

The people I do meet make it very obvious that what they are interested in is my looks and body. And they also make it clear after conversation with me even at length, or going to bed with me, that their purpose is to use my body and not to be with "me" as a person.

I've gotten to know people for various lengths of time, tried to establish (thought we were establishing a good relationship) only to be told: "I care for you and love you, but we couldn't make it together because you're so "hot" and I'd be jealous of you all the time and someone would always be trying to take you away from me." They are wrong! I am not now or ever have been promiscuous.

Lil, all I want is a relationship and friendships based on me, what I am, the man that lives inside this face and body.

Quite awhile ago (over a year), I stopped going to bars, etc., have only one or two close friends; one is straight.

What should I do? Try to make myself as unattractive as possible, or what? (One "friend" said, "Sell it honey; you'd make millions.") Lil, I don't want to, I never have, and never will. Another "friend" said, "You call that a problem? I'd love to have that problem!"

Lil, I really need some advice. To paraphrase a saying: "It isn't pretty being pretty; it's lonely as hell." I don't even know how to sign this letter in a cute way—it isn't funny!

Dear L.C.,

Thank you very much for your very different kind of letter. Incredibly handsome daddy (and I've had the pleasure of knowing one or two), I believe you might have helped some of us to realize that no one has it made and that everyone, regardless, has his share of problems. But, let's take a look at what we have.

L.C., you are you; I am me. We must work to the best of our abilities with what nature has given us. We need to consider exploring what we are—not what others "think" we are. We must learn to like/love ourselves just as who and what we are. Getting to know one's self is sometimes a very hard task.

Dear One, try letting go of projecting what you might assume other people think. There is no way of really knowing, and why waste valuable time and energy in allowing one's self to get caught up in this negativity? You seem to have good self-esteem and a genuine caring for others, and this is such a positive thing. Look at the bars as fun, frolic, and frenetic places to simply release tensions and live it up. What you're looking for, which I think is someone who really cares about you as a human being, is extremely difficult to find in what some term a "meat" parade. I, also, fear your brief relationships have been with persons who are very insecure with themselves or felt they were in competition with you. I'd think about reassessing "friends" who suggest you sell yourself, or who do not understand your problems. They appear to be anchors stunting your well-being. Consider new, caring, and loving friends with whom you can open up as you!

Make yourself unattractive? Never! Accent your appearance moreso. Work on productive environments and real friends. In other words, if it isn't working for you now (and I believe that it's not), change playgrounds and playmates—right now. I love you for you.

Your friend,
Diamond Lil

Dear Diamond Lil,

I have this problem and his name is Randy. I met him at this party a couple of my friends took me to. There is only one person I consider a perfect 10 and that is Jordy Claig of the soap opera "Capitol." Randy is not a ten, but he is a 9.95. My friends tell me I haven't a chance because he is totally into girls. I cry sometimes because I know I can't have the thing I want (Randy). I have two gay friends who look good. I also have a steady boyfriend whom I share an open relationship with. I don't want to end it with the three but I do want Randy in my bed. I am sooooo hard up for Randy that me, an average 7, would like to make it with a 9 or 10 to get over my bleeding heart for Randy. Diamond Lil, could you or anyone out there give me some tips on how to seduce a straight guy?

Sign,

Tired of jerking tears and beef

Dear "Tired of Jerking,"

Now, now, now, My Dear, you're being a spoiled, selfish, little tike! Why whoever heard of bemoaning something you didn't have? Do I cry every night because Robert Redford isn't in my bedstead? Why, goodness no!

Sugar Dumpling, I do understand your self-imposed predicament—for one or two of us have done the same. If you're wanting to lay a straight guy (and, believe me, that's all it will be), paint up those lips, put on a seductive frock and hairpiece, and flail yourself in his lap! (This is the voice of experience speaking, by the way.) "Straight" guys go for drag 90% of the time. It helps them keep up their male identity, while something else is gettin' up. (Praise the Lord, especially for some of us out there, for "straight" guys because they've really helped quite a few of us when we were hungry.)

I'd be grateful for my two gay friends and the steady boyfriend. There are many of us who don't even have that. All Miss Diamond ever asked from life was a steady boyfriend. Be thankful for what you have, Kitty-Belle.

With love and a little piece, oops, peace,
Diamond Lil

Children, be sure and pick up Miss Diamond's newest hit album at Poster Hut, Turtle's at Ansley Mall, Music City, etc., etc., Why be alone? Put Diamond on the turntable!

IN MEMORIAM: Miss Lavita Allen, if you're looking down on us from heaven above, we still love and miss you and all the good and bad times together. Diamond Lil and friends.

TOM BORN: ACUPRESSURE

Physiological stress is one of the most common and most ignored problems facing people today. You know; that tenseness that won't go away. Sure, it may not kill you, and you can certainly live with it, but it can make life a pain in the neck for yourself and those around you.

Tom Born, acpressure massage therapist, R.N.T., specializes in Shiatsu, a Japanese massage technique that engages the locations, junctions and movement points of the muscles and nerves through the use of finger pressure.

Tom is making his base in Atlanta, after working for several years in Key West, where he still maintains a shop. His work and dedication have earned him an elite following among the upper circles in New York, Key West and all along the East Coast.

Having trained extensively and with years of practical experience in exercise physiology and training, he has developed a multi-faceted philosophy of health and physical exercise and is capable of consulting with you about the best health regimen for you to follow.

Tom is the first massage therapist in Atlanta to specialize in acupressure and locates his shop in Ari's Health Food Market in Ansley Mall. Call 404 876-5460.

REVIEWS

LINDA HOPKINS AT THE PLUSH ROOM

Fritz Rathmann

When you hear a name like Linda Hopkins, you go to a show expecting no less than the best in entertainment. Whether on Broadway or in the intimate surroundings of a cabaret, Ms. Hopkins is no disappointment.

Hitting the stage with a vibrancy and exuberance that overwhelms even the most passive observer, she can make a small stage seem five times as large, and a cozy cabaret becomes a SRO concert hall. Her gutsy, robust style and powerful voice sweep you up and keep you hanging in midair throughout the performance.

A truly versatile performer with an obvious background in gospel and New Orleans-style jazz, Ms. Hopkins proves her abilities, taking even the most ordinary tunes and giving them that unrelenting power that makes all her songs great.

From a bluesy "Danny Boy" to a campy, slightly naughty "Kitchen Man," there is a quality in her music that can only be called "Linda Hopkins." Even her rendition of Billy Holliday's "Ain't Nobody's Business" translates the classic into more modern idiom, keeping the earthy defiance, but giving it a renewed vitality and strength that will keep it alive another fifty

This Tony Award-winning songstress belts out tunes with power and moxy, taking over the stage and audience alike, but that isn't all. Offstage, her work and determination in securing help for the poor and fighting for civil rights legislation have won her special recognition, including the signing of a proclamation by Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young, naming June 19th of this year Linda Hopkins Day in Atlanta.

The proclamation was presented on that date at the opening of her new show in the Plush Room Cabaret of the Hotel York Atlanta by Mr. Russel Cox, president of the hotel.

Linda Hopkins is currently performing at the Plush Room, 683 Peachtree, through July 1st. Showtimes are Tuesday through Sunday at 9:30 and 11pm. Admission is $9.

"AFTER ELEVEN" & "KITCHEN DUTY" AT PRINCE GEORGE

Fritz Rathmann

Victor Bumbalo's plays "After Eleven" and "Kitchen Duty" are two hilarious plays; well-written with a sense of comedy and gay camp that mirrors and satirizes the very audience for whom they were written and are performed.

In celebration of Pride Week, Sybilou Productions, Atlanta's only gay theatre company, is currently presenting the two plays through July 3rd at the Prince George Banquet Room.

Although the acting is often slow, stilted and leaves plenty of room for improvement, there is talent in the troupe and with experience there could be some pretty good actors among the group. The plays themselves were not hurt by this and there are plenty of good laughs and fun in the performances, enough that they are really enjoyable and entertaining.

I commend Sybilou on its efforts and wish it plenty of success in the future. Atlanta can use a good gay theatre company and this group could supply the need.

"TOP SECRET!"

Paramount

Fritz Rathmann

Writer-directors Jim Abrahams, David Zucker and Jerry Zucker, the trio that brought "Airplane" (not the sequel) to the screen, have done it once again with their newest creation, "Top Secret."

When your ordinary American rock idol meets the demure and innocent daughter of a distinguished scientist who's been kidnapped by the East Germans, it's just the beginning of a comedic romp through hotels, pizza hauses, dungeons and tunnels, spiced with carloads of police, resistance fighters and a sprinkling of cows.

Loaded with all the enthusiasm, wit and verbal slapstick that made "Airplane" one of the top grossing films of recent years, "Top Secret" proves the additive qualities of the Zucker-Abrahams-Zucker (Z.A.Z.) style of humor.

Tongue-in-cheek parody fills the movie, satirizing every World War II and Elvis movie you've ever seen and leaving you with the feeling that you've seen half the movie before—in a more serious vein,

Even though I think it moves a little slower than "Airplane," leaving you anxious for the next punch line, "Top Secret" is the funniest movie I've seen this year. It stars newcomer Val Kilmer, Lucy Gutteridge and Omar Sharif.

MIDTOWN MELANGE

Alexander Wallace

Nowhere is the variety and quality of life in Midtown better demonstrated than in the number and diversity of its restaurants.

New to the Midtown gustatory scene just this past month are two totally new spots: Mick's and The Art of Conversation, and an old favorite, The Bar on Peachtree, has now added lunch to its subtle charms.

First to open was Mick's, a "gourmet neighborhood diner" right next door to the original Pleasant Peasant—a new departure for MBA Member Steve Nygren's quality restaurants. First in what may be a national chain, Mick's is reminiscent of those neighborhood "Sweetie Shoppes" we all think we remember from our fifties high-school days. More moderately priced than the "typical Peasant restaurant," Mick's offers cheeseburgers, calzones, pasta, salads, "chicken grills," pizzas, sandwiches, those great Peasant desserts and all sorts of sodas, beers and wines in a faintly funky, fifties milieu.

Standouts from the menu were a tasty turkey club sandwich ($4.75) and a ham and broccoli calzone ($4.95), both so huge two man-sized appetites had to succumb to the doggie bag routine. Incidentally, calzones are very New York: Northerners always know what's good for them. A pepper grilled chicken breast ($5.75), one of several chicken-breast grills, was moist, flavorful, tangy and not overcooked. Everyone is finally realizing that the "new" chicken must not be cooked to death! A "special" of sea scallops on green spinach pasta ($5.95) was light and delicate with a clear difference between the two subtle tastes. This separation of powers was alone! Already SRO, Mick's is a must.

The Bar On Peachtree, always an enjoyable watering hold, now offers a good, basic, honest lunch menu featuring man-sized burgers and sandwiches. Everything is made fresh on the premises and is served with refreshing simplicity—nothing “fancy” to hide the good tastes. A five-ounce cheeseburger ($2.50) was overladen with good cheddar cheese (I loathe chefs who skimp on the cheese in cheeseburgers!) was juicy and rare and is served with your choice from three side-dish salads. “The Bar Club,” roast beef, turkey, ham and lettuce and tomato was huge and very tasty—and only $2.50. A limited dessert selection is available. There's beer, wine and coffee—and probably the best art show in Midtown, to add visual interest.

Alice and James Henry Pierce have opened their “home” to the Art of Conversation—and this intimate coffeehouse and restaurant is a unique and welcome addition to the Midtown scene. Located in a gracious old New England, gable-roofed cottage, the building has been lovingly restored and decorated and might be found anywhere in Merry Old England. A faintly "Colonial-church" atmosphere is evoked in the two-story, galleried dining room and in the tile-walled fireplace room with their beige walls and tan moldings (which turn subtly mauve at sundown) and gleaming brass chandeliers and sconces. Alice and John Henry wanted to create a place where fine folk could linger over good coffee and good conversation—perhaps after the theatre—and they have exceeded their own desires. Here is truly a sophisticated new element to Midtown.

The charm of The Art of Conversation is subtle but alluring—visitors wander in, not knowing what to expect, are greeted and seated and made to feel at home. Classical music seems to be originating from the balcony—the owner-proprietor busies himself behind the wine-bar: Was it thus in Williamsburg? Talk—artful conversation—is a natural effluvia at this genuine coffeehouse. Personally selected wines and beers are available by the glass ($2.25 & up) or by the bottle ($18 tops). Each is distinctive and reflects the owner's inquisitive but knowing taste. A pink "white" Zinfandel was superb. Fare is light, elegant, made with fresh ingredients and a home-made touch. In essence, it's the feeling you get when you're invited to someone's home and the meal is made especially for you. A chicken salad sandwich in a croissant was memorable, a salad of fresh greens with crisp carrot strips with a mustard and orange dressing was anything but cloying, a chocolate mousse was silvery perfection! Three cups of dark, bitter, freshly-brewed espresso, served in white Wedgewood-like cups (very "colonial"!) were consistently satisfying. The light, novel, eminently satisfying cuisine and warm personal attention left one wanting more—more music, more food, more coffee, more conversation, more elegant companionship.

The film was directed by George Cukor, famous for being the "women's director," and whose fastidious direction cannot be praised enough. "A Star is Born" was his first musical, his first movie shot in color, and was one of the first movies to be made in Cinemascope.

"A Star is Born" which is now being re-released in reconstructed form drew nearly 6,000 celebrities and movie fans to the Radio City Music Hall in December for the renaissance of the film, including Lillian Gish, Helen Hayes, Patricia Neal, Candice Bergen, Tony Randall, Judy's co-star James Mason and her two daughters, Liza Minelli and Lorna Luft.

Dorothy and Toto made their twenty-fifth annual appearance on television this year, marking a yearly event that many people look forward to as much as Christmas. Fifteen years after her death Judy Garland is very much alive with her songs and music, and with the reissue of "A Star" she'll have the chance to gain still more admirers.

Atlantans will have the opportunity to see the re-release at the Fox Theatre in August as part of their summer film series.

COMMUNITY NEWS

ATLANTA CELEBRATES GAY PRIDE

"Once More—With Feeling!" is the theme as Atlanta's lesbians and gay men celebrate 1984 Gay Pride. Starting on June 21 and ending with the annual gay pride parade on July 3rd, lesbian and gay community organizations will host over two dozen events to commemorate the 1969 Stonewall rebellion in New York City.

The Gay Pride Parade is the one event when the often invisible lesbian and gay community openly shows its strength. Although many gays cannot participate for fear of exposure, organizers hope to draw 5,000 or more people to this year's march.

Unlike the marches in the past, this year's parade will leave at 7pm in the evening. Those participating are asked Center around 6pm to get off to a good start. The route will lead west on Ralph McGill Boulevard to Peachtree Street, and then turn north on Peachtree (using the northbound lanes) to 10th Street.

Immediately after the march a rally with featured speaker feminist Sonya Johnson will be held between 10th and 11th Streets on Peachtree. The rally will continue till 10pm.

As in past years, the '84 Gay Pride Committee has asked Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young to proclaim July 3rd as "Lesbian/Gay Civil Rights Day."

NOW LAUNCHES LESBIAN/GAY RIGHTS DRIVE

Trenton, NJ—

Judy Goldsmith, President of the National Organization for Women, speaking in the State Assembly in Trenton, NJ, today announced NOW's support for New Jersey bill A-1721, the state lesbian and gay rights bill. Goldsmith said, "National NOW will be here in New Jersey supporting New Jersey NOW and working with others to ensure passage of this law. We know from our long experience in working for equal rights for women that there will be those who will oppose us, but we are confident that most people will no longer tolerate discrimination in any form and we are confident that our voices will be heard—this is a matter of simple justice."

A-1721 would amend the New Jersey Law Against Discrimination by adding sexual orientation to the protected categories in the areas of housing, employment, public accommodations, credit and insurance. Goldsmith spoke at a news conference in the State Capitol along with NOW New Jersey Coordinator Christine Carmody-Arey and the bill's chief sponsor Bennett Mazur.

Carmody-Arey also announced the appointment of Rosemary Dempsey, Esp., as the NOW lobbyist for the bill. Dempsey, as the lobbyist, will be responsible for developing support for the measure in the state assembly. To date there are 21 sponsors for the measure in the 80 member House.

LEA DeLARIA AND JEANINE STROBEL TO PERFORM AT NEXUS THEATRE

Atlanta, GA—

She's been heckled in Chicago and St. Louis and was the only stand-up comic to ever play the San Francisco International Festival. She was a smash hit at the southern Women's Music and Comedy Festival and has even been a bouncer at a flipper concert. Lea DeLaria, stand-up comic, jazz singer and self-professed egomaniac will have her Atlanta premiere, with partner Jeanine Strobel, at the Nexus Theatre on July 6th and 7th at 8:30pm.

Their blend of slick acoustic jazz and outrageous comedy has won them raves and full houses coast to coast. "Lea as a comedian is an undisputed natural. The woman takes chances. To the audience I recommend partying and anything is possible with her keen perspective on life's absurdities." (Coming Up/San Francisco).

"Her passion for jazz has deep personal roots and when DeLaria/balladeer steps up to the microphone, she delivers a lover's salute to the great American chanteuse. DeLaria eulogizes legends such as Judy Garland and Billy Holliday. When DeLaria and Strobel play serious music, they do so with a simple, elegant style—one strong voice, one acoustic guitar. The basics are enough." (San Francisco Bay Guardian). Tickets for the performance are $4 with limited seating. Call 404 688-2500 for reservations.

OH, GO BEAT IT YOURSELF, MICHAEL!

D. Patrick Coleman

Every president for the past few terms has had his personal plan to whip the economy back into shape. Nixon had price controls. Ford had WIN buttons. Carter had problems. Now, President Reagan has come up with the best one of all: The Jackson's Victory Tour 1984.

Michael Jackson's recent trip to Washington to accept an award for helping in a drunk driving campaign was actually an elaborate cover-up. While there, he secretly met with the President, Treasury Secretary Regan, and the Council of Economic Advisors. Timing was of the utmost importance. Considering Mr. Reagan had a re-election campaign coming up, something had to be done to make sure the economy remained in tip-top shape throughout the summer. Thus the tour by the Jackson's.

"What does this have to do with the economy," you ask? Let's look at the kind of money this thing is going to generate.

First of all, to obtain accurate information about the concert one must call a 900 hot-line. For those not familiar with this service it costs $.50 per call. Half goes to Ma Bell, half goes to Pepsi Cola, sponsors of the hot-line. Let's suppose that for every person who will attend the concerts (2,940,000 screaming fools) 10 calls will be placed. That comes to $14,700,000.

Next comes ticket sales. Latest rumor has it that 14 cities will be graced with this madness. The Jacksons will play in stadiums that seat at least 70,000 people and will remain in each city for 3 days. 14x3x70,000x(here's the clincher) $30 per head comes to $88,200,000.

Of course tickets to these concerts will not be easy to come by. The Jacksons couldn't handle the thought of thousands of people standing in line for days waiting to buy tickets so they complicated matters. Tickets can only be obtained through the mail. Four tickets is the minimum purchase. Every person interested must tie up $120 for two months to qualify for a lottery to perhaps get tickets. Of course everyone is not going to get tickets. For those who don't, the Jackson's get to sit on their money for another two months.

At 12% interest, that's another $1,764,000.

Finally, there's the concert itself. According to a local concert promoter, each person who attends will spend an average of $10 apiece on such frivolous items as t-shirts, programs, and of course, autographed pictures of Michael. Another $29,400,000. The grand total: $134,064,000. If you add in the effect of the economic multiplier theory, you have over one billion dollars pumped into the economy by one little concert tour. As a result of this economic coup, Mr. Reagan will be re-elected in the fall. However, the biggest "Victory" will be for the Jacksons as the "Beat It" straight to the bank.
