GAY PRIDE DAY

It was a glorious day for the 14th Annual Gay Pride March and celebration in New York where thousands marched proudly down 5th Avenue. Even though some people have said that God has sent AIDS as a punishment on gay people, it must certainly not be so as every March day for the past 13 years has been clear and nice—so God must be watching over us.

An estimated 100,000 marched during the 3-hour parade down 5th Avenue. It had been feared there would be anti-gay reactions because of the AIDS epidemic in the gay community, but there was no violence during the March.

A small group of anti-gay Catholics called the parade blasphemous, holding up signs of Jesus on the cross. One read: "Forgive them, Father—they know not what they do."

About 700 cops were assigned to the parade route, about 200 of them around St. Patrick's Cathedral to keep the steps and sidewalk in front clear of people. The steps were closed because an anti-gay group had vowed to keep the steps from being used as a reviewing stand. They were closed after city council majority leader Thomas Cuite talked to Terence Cardinal Cooke.

In Federal Court, Wed. June 15th Judge Robert J. Ward declared "frivolous and unfounded" a suit to stop the Gay Pride March brought by Catholic War Veterans against the Christopher Street Committee and Dignity. The group hoped to stop the parade from passing in front of St. Pat's, citing "anti-religious behavior."

The March was dedicated to AIDS victims everywhere. One sign read: "Fighting for Our Lives."

On the lighter side, one drag queen carried a sign that read: "God Save American Queens."

Thousands packed Christopher St. at the Gay Festival that featured all kinds of things to eat, things to buy and organizations to find out about or join.

In Chicago an estimated 7000 marched in a parade led by former Mayor Jane Byrne.

In San Francisco, parade officials estimated 200,000 participated in the 13th Annual March there, also dedicated to AIDS victims. A group of AIDS victims rode in a converted cable-car near the head of the parade.

In Columbus, Ohio, a small group of gay marchers were confronted by an anti-gay religious group.

The next issue of GAY SCENE will have more on the gay marches and photos of the New York March.

The local TV stations, Channels 7, 4 and 2, covered the March on the 11 O'Clock News. Also, the New York Times, Daily News and the Post featured articles and photos of the parade in Monday's editions of the newspapers.

As we go to press, we learn that Gov. Cuomo has reversed his position on AIDS money and signed state Sen. Roy Goodman's bill allocating $5.25 million for the battle against AIDS.

VD RATE DOWN: FEAR OF AIDS MAY BE CAUSE

Atlanta—Reserachers at the national Centers for Disease Control report a 6 percent drop in gonorrhea rates nationwide this year, but say it's too early to tell if fear of AIDS has contributed to the trend. Nationwide, 367,497 cases of gonorrhea were reported by the CDC for the first 11 weeks of 1983—down almost 24,000 cases from the same period last year. The 1983 figures are 7 percent below the median for 1978-82.

"The gonorrhea trends are very, very good news," William Whittington, a venereal disease researcher with the CDC said.

He gave "the largest" credit for the decrease to control measures implemented in 1972, including screening of high-risk women and referrals of sex partners of infected people for treatment.

Earlier, health officials in Los Angeles County reported a 20 percent drop in gonorrhea for 1982 compared to 1981, and gave the credit to heightened fears of AIDS, genital herpes and other sexually transmitted diseases.

L.A. has the third highest number of AIDS cases of any American city, officials said.

The AIDS theory, Whittington said, is "an excellent explanation that needs to be tested."

"We don't have super solid evidence, so we haven't done enough to say there's an absolute relationship."

NO MEDICAID FOR SEX CHANGE

A federal judge in Atlanta ruled recently that the state has a legitimate interest in denying Medicaid benefits for sex-change surgery.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Richard Freeman denies benefits for Carolyn Rush, a court-ordered pseudonym for a Medicaid recipient who has been fighting since 1974 to have the state pay for her sex-change operation.

Although born a male, and although sex-change surgery has not been performed, Ms. Rush lives as, and believes herself to be, a female. She says that surgery to change her sex would ease emotional problems caused by her transsexualism.

Her attorneys argued that the state's policy denying her Medicaid benefits for the sex-change surgery violated the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment by singling out transsexuals for unfair treatment.

But in his ruling, Freeman said that sex-change surgery "is neither generally accepted as a proven and effective treatment, nor is there authoritative evidence that the surgery is safe and effective."

Freeman added, "The evidence taken as a whole shows that it constitutes major surgery with various attendant risks and complications and that there is no consensus in the professional medical community that the surgery is effective treatment for transsexualism."

Freeman initially had ordered the state to pay for the operation in 1977, but attorneys for the state appealed that decision to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. In 1980, the appeals court sent the case back to Freeman for a second trial to determine if in fact sex-change surgery is an experimental medical procedure.

LIBERACE PAL SAYS 'I'M NO PROSTITUTE'

Los Angeles—The 24-year-old alleged lover of Liberace yesterday filed a $6 million defamation suit in Superior Court here against the entertainer and a weekly publication.

Scott Thorson, who lodged a $113 million "palimony" suit last year against the 63-year-old pianist, now charges that he was wrongfully accused of being a male prostitute, that he had had sex with a man when he was 11, and that he had a long line of lovers—including his foster father—in a story published Dec. 7 in The Globe.

"I'm not a prostitute, that's ridiculous," Thorson said.

"This story makes the public believe I'm nothing but a little whore."

Thorson said the story subjected him to "hatred, contempt, ridicule, embarrassment and humiliation" and that he is unable to find employment.

His attorney, Michael Rosenthal, said he has evidence that Liberace had allegedly induced Thorson's half-brother, Wayne Johnson, to present the newspaper with a story citing a sexual relationship between Thorson and his foster father, David Brummet.

"Dave was not a homosexual," Thorson said.

Rosenthal said the article was "an attempt to scare Thorson into an unfair settlement" in the palimony case.

DEADLY BUGS

A parasite that can be transmitted from animals to humans could be a significant cause of diarrhea, researchers reported recently.

For most people, the parasitic infection causes a minor but annoying case of diarrhea that ends in a few days. However, the infection can be life-threatening for patients with weakened immune systems, including those with AIDS.

The parasite is called cryptosporidium. Until recently, only a handful of cases of human infection had been reported. But a study done by a team headed by William L. Current of Auburn University found that nine persons who were exposed to infected calves developed diarrhea caused by the parasite.

A number of other animals—including lambs, rodents, dogs and cats—can be in-fectected by cryptosporidium, the researchers said. The infection can be passed from animals to humans and then from one human to another. Many cases of unexplained human diarrhea thus could be attributed to cryptosporidium infection, the team reported in the New England Journal of Medicine.

The Centers for Disease Control have reported 21 such infections in patients with AIDS. The diarrhea suffered by some of those patients was severe enough to be life-threatening.

A CURE FOR HERPES?

British scientists claim they have developed a cure for genital herpes.

They report development of a vaccine that cures and provides immunity to the sexually-transmitted disease—which has reached epidemic proportions in the U.S. and Britain.

The vaccine should be available to doctors throughout the world within a few years, according to a British newspaper.

Dr. Chris Hartley, one of the four members of the Birmingham University medical team credited with developing the vaccine, said it has been tested successfully "on sufferers and those at risk—such as a wife whose husband has herpes."

"We have succeeded in preventing it occurring and have also had no side effects whatsoever," he said.

The vaccine was developed during seven years of research by the Birmingham University team in association with government scientists from the former top secret research center.

Dr. Peter Sutton, director of the Applied Microbiology Research Center, said his facility will produce the vaccine—a complex liquid derived from a dead herpes virus—in limited quantities for clinical tests.

But Sutton cautioned against overstating the present state of research. "My guess is that it would take three, four, five years before family doctors will be using it. It has to be thoroughly tested and regulated."

Sutton said he believes the vaccine will be fairly expensive, costing about $32 an injection. "But that's a lot less than hospital treatment," he noted.

Genital herpes—herpes simplex 2—is a virus transmitted by physical contact. It infects the genital area with blisters and lesions, invades the spinal cord and is often accompanied by headaches.

Although it is rarely life-threatening to healthy adults, it has far-reaching effects.

The disease poses serious danger when transmitted to newborn children or to sufferers of heart disease, cancer or other ailments.

An estimated 20 million Americans—nearly one out of every 10—suffer from it. And new cases are believed to be occurring here at the rate of 500,000 a year.

To date only one herpes drug—acyclovir—has cleared rigorous U.S. regulatory procedures.

It is an ointment designed to reduce the duration of a patient's first genital herpes infection—which generally lasts two or three weeks.

Medical experts, however, claim it is of limited value because it does not prevent recurrences.

SUSPECT IN BEAN SLAYING

New York—A 25-year-old Manhattan man has been charged in the fatal stabbing of a young theatrical stage designer in the basement entrance of an upper East Side brownstone on May 19.

The suspect, Alfred Desjardin, of 204 E. 90th St., was arrested eight days after he allegedly knifed Winthrop Bean, 22, in the downstairs alcove of a brownstone at 229 E. 88th St., between Second and Third Aves.

Bean, the son of a Connecticut lawyer, kept a meticulous diary and address book in which detectives hunted for clues.

(See June GAY SCENE for further information.)

CUOMO CHECKS PUBLIC CHEEKS

Albany—New Yorkers who like to sun their buns got burned this month when Gov. Cuomo signed a law prohibiting "bottomless" nudity at public places.

According to the new anti-nudity statute, they'll be out of line if they soak up rays that way in places like beaches and boardwalks.

But there's an asterisk to the story—at least for the next 30 days.

That's how long "bottomless" bathers will be allowed to do their thing, if local laws don't already prohibit such intimate exposure to the sun.

After that, sunbathers at places such as Riis Park in Brooklyn and Fire Island will be forced to take part in the coverup.

State law currently bans women from appearing "topless" in most public places.

Banning female chests but not the bottoms of both sexes "is not logically justified," said Cuomo.

The governor did not comment on the logic of prohibiting the exposure of the breasts of women, but not of men."

GAY MOVEMENT NEWS

DIXON BILL REINTRODUCED—Reaffirming the need to oppose discrimination in any form, Rep. Julian C. Dixon has reintroduced legislation to repeal the laws which allow for the exclusion of foreign visitors or immigrants because of sexual preference.

Existing law permits the Immigration and Naturalization Service of the Justice Department to deport or refuse entrance to individuals on the grounds of sexual deviation. "It is a matter of simple justice that we strike this vague provision designed to exclude homosexuals based upon the determination of the American Psychiatric Association. The APA has long since deleted homosexuality as a psychological disorder, and retention of this provision is vestige of discrimination which this nation needs to put in the past," says Dixon.

This bill, H.R. 2815, was reintroduced on April 28, 1983 with 35 co-sponsors, and will be referred to the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Immigration and Refugees.

GALA was formed to bring together gay and lesbian Yale alumni for social events, for support for gay and lesbian Yale students and to help maintain 'the old school tie.' GALA invites all gay and lesbian alumni of any Yale school to join by writing PO Box 2119 Rockefeller Center Station, NY 10185.

METROPOLITAN COMMUNITY CHURCHES—MCC, the oldest and largest Christian organization ministering to lesbians and gay men will attend the 11th Biennial General Conference of the Universal Fellowship of MCC in Toronto, Ontario, July 11-17. Conference XI will open at the University of Toronto with the opening Communion service in the University's

Convocation Hall. For further information: MCC, 5300 Santa Monica Blvd., Suite 304, Los Angeles 90029

THE HUMAN RIGHTS CAMPAIGN FUND—HRCF, the national pro-gay civil rights political action committee, has announced the appointment of Vic Basile, a Washington, D.C.-based gay activist and labor union organizer, as the Executive Director. The Fund, in its first major elections in 1982, raised over $600,000 and won an extraordinary 81 percent of the Congressional races it entered.

Basile will be responsible for the overall operation of the Fund, including fundraising, media and public relations, staff supervision, and the critical oversight of the Fund's City Committees. Relations with other PACs and with candidates will continue to be supervised by HRCF's treasurer, Steve Endean, who supervised the overall operation of the Fund until Basile's appointment. Newly elected co-Chair of HRCF, Dan Bradley, the former President of the Legal Services Corporation whose coming out made national news, called Basile "the right person for the tremendous task facing the community." Endean praised Basile saying, "Vic has excellent organizing skills, as demonstrated by his efforts to secure labor support for gay civil rights." Further information: PO Box 1396, Washington, D.C. 20012.

SEVENTH DAY ADVENTIST KINSHIP INTERNATIONAL—An organization of gay and lesbian 7th Day Adventists, will hold its fourth annual "Kampmeeting" at a wooded summer camp in Montgomery County, Pa., August 7-14. The week-long retreat will feature a variety of workshops, recreation, worship services and social activities. "Kampmeeting is an incredible week of our lives that makes the rest of the year more bearable," says the coordinator of the session Obed Vazquez. "It is a time of rejuvenation, a time of sharing and healing that can only be fully understood by others who know what it means to be gay and Christian in a conservative faith. It's a wonderful way for gays and lesbians to make new friends in a wholesome, non-threatening environment." Further info: (714) 952-0628.

GAY RIGHTS NATIONAL LOBBY—Washington, D.C.—Congress is finally beginning to respond to the AIDS epidemic, with over 14 bills introduced and moving their way through the legislative process. The AIDS Project, an affiliate of the GRNL, is working intensely to help arrange passage of research funding bills, patient health care benefits bills, and research expediting bills. The most important and fastest moving bills include: The Waxman and Cranston Bills; Waxman's calls for the creation of a $40 million emergency fund to be used by Health and Human Services agencies to combat "public health emergencies." Cranston's bill is the Senate companion bill. The Boxer Bills, introduced by Rep. Barbara Boxer, replace similar

AIDS research funding bills written by the late Phil Burton, one of the strongest supporters of gay rights and AIDS funding in Congress. Her bills call for $10 million for the Centers for Disease Control AIDS research in fiscal year 1984 and $20 million of the National Institutes of Health research in the same fiscal year. The Waxman and Kennedy Amendments are sponsored by Rep. Waxman who has probably done more on AIDS than any other member of Congress and Ted Kennedy. Waxman wrote an amendment require NIH to establish expedited procedures for public health emergency research. It currently takes NIH, the largest medical research organization in the world, more than a year to fund and begin research projects due to its extensive peer review system. Kennedy's amendment is identical, introduced in the Senate. Rep. Ted Weiss' bill would actually help AIDS victims directly. His bill calls for automatic Medicaid eligibility for AIDS patients. This would help alleviate the huge medical costs associated with AIDS (More than $60,000 on average per patient). Weiss' bill faces an uphill battle because automatic eligibility has only been authorized for one other disease. Persons can get more information on all the AIDS bills by writing or calling: The AIDS project, PO Box 1892, Washington, DC 20013, (201) 546-1801.

FORMER CONGRESSMAN TO HEAD AIDS LOBBY—Former Congressman Jim Corman will head a special AIDS Lobbying Task Force. The task force is expected to significantly assist the short-staffed Lobby in dealing with the many AIDS-related measures on Capitol Hill, as well as bringing considerable extra clout to the efforts. Joining Rep. Corman are Judy Goldsmith, the President of NOW and Dan Bradley, former President of the National Legal Services Corp. Allan Jonas, the former President of the American Cancer Society, has agreed to serve as a special advisor to the project.

Rep. Corman, who represented the San Fernando Valley for 20 years, can be expected to substantially enhance the efforts. During his time in Congress, Corman was a leading advocate of both civil rights and national health insurance. During his last four years in Congress, he served as Chair of the influential Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee. Since leaving Congress, he has become a partner in the law firm of Charles Manatt and now spends extensive time lobbying Capitol Hill.

D.D.'s NEW YORK

by D.D. Griffo and G.J. Day

AIDS is still the number one topic of conversation in both the gay and straight communities. A sad footnote to the Gay Circus was the revelation that several circus attendees swished over to J's Back Room after the festivities and were seen by my spies fucking and sucking while holding their ever-so-precious circus programs. Obviously, a lot of Russians out there playing roulette....Eyewitness News on June 22 exposed a medical center that advertises in many gay publications which claims that they can do AIDS screening and testing. Now practically everyone knows that THERE IS NO KNOWN TEST FOR AIDS. The only way a doctor will know if a person has the disease is when the person gets it. That's why it pays to either be faithful to your lover or become celibate until the cause is at least found and a test to discover it is revealed. It just galls me to think that even in this health crisis, there are charlatans anxious to make a quick buck out of fear and panic. What the doctors at that place as well as any gay doctor do is a simply lymph gland probe, a blood test and count to see if your immune system is holding up. I have gotten such a test every year since I was 40 as part of my company's annual medical screening. I'm glad that a straight TV network such as Channel 7 had the balls to expose the aforementioned item because it is something that has been bugging the hell out of me for some time now....RICHARD LOCKE, the film star, is now residing in New York and is raising funds for the ARC—The Aids Resource Center which will be created to house those unfortunate gays who have nowhere else to turn. Locke exposed some of the extravagances of many gays. It seems that he was appearing at a large gay disco which was donating his fee to AIDS research and he discovered that some gay guy in attendance had flown there in a Lear jet. What the guy spends on that could help at least a dozen gays with AIDS....The Memorial Vigil held on June 13 at the Central Park Bandshell was a somber event, but filled with hope. Mayor Koch gave a spirited talk about the need to revoke funeral directors' licenses if they refuse to handle AIDS victims. It's time that we had our OWN gay funeral parlors. The vigil was held in memory of KENNY RAMSAUER, who was seen on national television just prior to his demise. A certain New York newspaper (Not GAY SCENE) is quite embarrassed since they made excuses for the hospital staff that gave Kenny a rough time....The Gay Men's Health Crisis has become the recipient of almost $2000 donated by Gay Daddies III group and friends in memory of their member, Greg, who died at the young age of 28. Bill Perry of BIG TOP fame is bringing us something new. He has created the P.M. BOOKSTORE which is located at the Tom Cat Cinema, 207 West 48th St., 2nd floor. You pay you $6 admission to the Tom Cat, and it is refunded to you if you buy only $25 worth of goodies. The store features all-male home video cassettes (and in these times, they surely come in HANDY), leather toys and goods, accessories, magazines, etc. Bill also runs the Broadway Baths and, of course, the BIG TOP Cinema. It seems that one of his former workers, WILLIAM E. SLICKER (a.k.a. Billy J., Billy Josefs) has stolen merchandise and office equipment, funds, video equipment, from P.M. Productions and the Broadway Baths in New York. Billy is 6'1", dirty blond hair, blue eyes and is 34 years old. He is considered to be dangerous and may be suffering from AIDS. If you are approached by someone who looks like him and he tries to sell you duped cassettes, leather goods or an IBM selectric typewriter, get in touch with P.M. Productions at (212) 541-5693, or the NYC Police Dept. A reward is being offered for the arrest and conviction of said person. Bill Perry is really a very nice guy and deserves a better break than being screwed by such a despicable person....

The Grove, like so many other Fire Island communities, both gay & straight, has suffered about a 50 percent drop in business including seasonal rentals. More gays than straights have expressed a fear about coming out to the Grove during the current AIDS crisis. What is happening is that long-term couples (and there are more of them out at the Grove than you've been led to believe) are reuniting, the Meat Rack is just about closed for the season except for blueberry picking and we are beginning to treat each other as people, rather than objects. Don't be afraid to come out to the Grove. Be proud and gay and come....The First Arts Project Show is LOVE: CHERRY GROVE STYLE which will run through July 4th. The big news is that on July 30, the RED, HOT & ROSE show will be presented at the Community House. Pete and Wynne celebrated their 36th Anniversary together last month; this month Don & Ron will celebrate their 12th on July 4th and George will celebrate his 45th birthday then. Honey Bun doesn't look older than 34....especially next to my old 48....My trip to Atlanta was business mostly, but a cute friend named Larry took me to the GALLUS restaurant which is elegant upstairs but filled with moth-eaten hustlers downstairs. Atlanta's two gay publications are CRUISE and NITE SCENE. I finally got to see the inside of the Fabulous Fox. Next month will feature a series of Grove photos since I will be in Europe at the time. Will fill you in on the scene in London, Paris, Lucerne & Italy. Till then, have an AIDS-free summer.

U.S. HEALTH DEPT JOINS WAR ON AIDS

The federal government will jump into the battle against AIDS by providing public health advisors to hard-hit big cities, setting up a national hotline and making victims eligible for Social Security disability payments, Health Secretary Margaret M. Heckler announced recently.

Mrs. Heckler said her Dept. of Health and Human Services would give top priority to find the cause and cure of AIDS.

"AIDS will continue to be the No. 1 health priority of my department until we have discovered the cause and developed a cure," Mrs. Heckler told the 51st annual meeting of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

She said AIDS had killed 595 people in the U.S. Ninety-four percent of the 1552 reported cases have occurred in homosexual or bisexual males with multiple sex partners, intravenous drug abusers, recent immigrants from Haiti and people with hemophilia.

Mrs. Heckler said four or five new cases of AIDS were reported daily and warned spread of the disease could stretch the ability of hospitals to deal with it.

Mrs. Heckler lauded the mayors for creating a task force on AIDS and said the federal government would assign public health advisers to New York City, San Francisco and other areas with high numbers of AIDS cases.

She also said her agency would create an AIDS hotline and has made AIDS victims eligible for Social Security disability benefits.

But Mrs. Heckler warned against "unnecessary and unjustified" fear about AIDS.

NY CITY TO ALLAY AIDS FEARS WITH $16 GADGET

New York—The city is considering buying an inexpensive piece of equipment that would protect its workers who must perform mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and are concerned about contracting AIDS.

The six-inch long device costs about $16 each and would act as a straw-like barrier between the rescuers—such as firefighters, ambulance workers and police—and the patient.

"We would buy it to allay the fears of the workforce," said Victor Botnick, special assistant to Mayor Koch.

The disclosure came just hours after Mayor Koch and City Health Commissioner Dr. David Sencer appealed to the public and city employees to remain calm about the illness which has so far afflicted more than 700 New Yorkers since 1978, killing 262 of them.

Koch insisted the disease could not be transmitted through "direct contact" between people. "It is not carried on the air," the mayor said.

Both Koch and Sencer insisted that surgical masks and gloves were not needed by city workers, such as correction officers, who come in contact with AIDS victims.

They reiterated the scientific belief that AIDS is spread through intimate sexual contact, blood products and contaminated needles.

But Sencer later said AIDS might be transmitted by "saliva through an open wound." He said the saliva would have to go into a "bite, a deep wound."

Botnick said the device, called an S-tube and manufactured by a Canadian firm, was brought to a meeting of city officials.

'CLOSE BATHS & BAN PARADE' SAYS NY DOC

New York—A New York physician—saying the city is gripped by an AIDS epidemic—called for a ban on the Gay Pride parade and charged health officials with downplaying the threat of the deadly disease.

"AIDS patients are dropping like flies," Dr. Ada Ryan said at a press conference. "The City Dept. of Health is criminally negligent in not responding."

Dr. Ryan, an outspoken anti-abortion activist associated with Flushing Hospital in Queens, urged city officials to close down all possible sources of the infection, including gay bath houses and clubs; prohibit public assembly of high-risk groups, particularly gays and heavy drug users, including the scheduled June 26th Gay pride parade.

"More than 200,000 gays are expected to march in that parade," Dr. Ryan said. "They'll be coming here from all over the country. When they leave, they will carry a potential threat to the rest of the nation."

AIDS Death Linked to Blood Transfusion

A victim of AIDS who died at an upstate hospital in New York last month may have contracted the disease through a blood transfusion, the state Health Dept. said.

The victim, whom the department would not identify, died at St. Clare's Hospital in Schenectady over Memorial Day weekend. The department said he may have contracted the illness through a transfusion he received in another state.

"There's no real evidence AIDS is transmitted through blood transfusions," spokesperson Frances Tarlton said.

However, the Schenectady AIDS victim did not fit into any of the high-risk AIDS categories—homosexuals, bisexuals, intravenous drug users or Haitians. Some hemophiliacs have also contracted the disease.

"We understand the individual received blood transfusions out of state," said Miss Tarlton. She would not say which state.

We've said all were prepared to say on this—that it's a confirmed AIDS case, and that the individual did not appear to fall into any currently known risk groups. The only factor that's possibly relevant is the fact that he did receive blood transfusions."

Katherine Lord, a spokesperson for the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, said that only 12 of the 1552 AIDS cases identified so far nationwide are being investigated for possible links to blood transfusions.

The state's Council on Human Blood and Transfusion Services said there is "no significant risk" of contracting AIDS through blood transfusions.

Dr. John Hanrahan, a CDC epidemic intelligence service officer assigned to the Health Department, said the department in the state where the man received the transfusion was attempting to locate the source of the blood and determine if any of the donors might have AIDS or be members of any of the high-risk groups.

Hanrahan described the victim as an older man "outside of the principal age risk groups for AIDS," which is under 39.

LINK BETWEEN VIRUS & AIDS

New York—In a recent issue of the Lancet (a medical journal), a team of researchers from Albert Einstein Medical College and Montefiore Medical Center in the Bronx say they have found a link between a common virus, called adenovirus and AIDS. They stated that adenovirus had been identified in 20 AIDS patients. Ten of those patients were reported in the Lancet article. The team said that much testing needs to be done to determine whether the adenovirus was, in fact, a cause of AIDS.

Adenoviruses are a frequent cause of respiratory illnesses as well as a variety of other disorders. The report adds it to the list of several other viruses for which there is some evidence suggesting an association with AIDS. Among them are those called Leukemia Virus.

Dr. Marshall S. Horwitz said that his team has studied these viruses so extensively among AIDS victims. He said they were expecting samples from England as part of its continuing studies to determine whether there is a geographical pattern to infections with adenovirus 35. AIDS has been reported in England, Denmark, the Netherlands, Norway, Spain and West Germany. West Germany has reported 24 confirmed and 100 suspected cases of AIDS, including 6 deaths.

BATHS MANAGER CANCELS AIDS BENEFIT

Washington D.C.—Carl Aleshire, the manager of the Olympic Baths, cancelled a fundraiser for the AIDS Education Fund of the Whitman-Walker Clinic because the clinic's brochure on AIDS is "unfair" as it discourages baths patronage.

Jim Graham, president of the clinic, said "We're not saying don't go there. We're simply saying, cut down the number of contacts you have when you do go there."

DRs. SEARCH FOR AIDS CLUES

New York—Dr. Polly Thomas, and her colleague, Dr. Mary Chamberland, along with five others whose salaries are paid with a $125,000 grant from the Centers for Disease Control and about a dozen others on the team who are paid by the city are medical detectives who are seeking clues to the AIDS outbreak here. AIDS victims who can't be classified immediately in the high-risk categories are interviewed by Dr. Thomas and her colleagues.

The patients are asked about 70 questions which include a medical and lifestyle history. Then their sex partners and families are interviewed after the patients sign a consent form. Some victims, mainly drug users, have refused to sign the form and fourteen AIDS victims have died before they could be interviewed.

More than half of the 1450 AIDS cases recorded nationwide have been in New York City and ten times as many cases based on population have been reported in New York and San Francisco than in the rest of the country. Cases in New York are increasing at the rate of one or two a day. Of the 722 victims reported here since 1978, 262 have died.

AIDS MEDICAL FOUNDATION ESTABLISHED

New York—A new foundation has been established to find a solution to the problem of AIDS. The AIDS Medical Foundation, a not-for-profit organization, will support selected outstanding scientists in their research efforts to determine definitively the cause(s), and means of treatment and prevention of AIDS. This foundation is one of the first private efforts to address this national health crisis through basic scientific research. Initial funding has already been generously contributed by the Mathilde and Arthur B. Krim Foundation.

The Foundation's Chief Medical Officer is Dr. Joseph A. Sonnabend, a distinguished clinician, virologist and microbiologist with a private medical practice in Manhattan. Dr. Sonnabend is also Editor in Chief of the new AIDS Research Journal.

The Foundation will be located at 10 East 13th Street, Suite LD, New York 10003.

AIDS VICTIM DISCHARGED FROM JURY DUTY

San Francisco—Recently Andrew Small, an AIDS victim, was excused from jury duty after fellow jurors sent a note to the judge objecting to his presence.

Small said his status as an AIDS victim came out at a pre-trial questioning, but that he was seated on a jury for a personal injury suit. On the second day of the trial, he decided to ask to be excused to avoid problems.

PRISON COOK WITH AIDS HAS GUARDS UPSET

New York—William Bettis, a 45-year-old cook at the Queens House of Detention, died three weeks after he called in sick with AIDS. Bettis worked at the jail from July, 1981 to May 24, 1983. This caused a lot of concern by the correction officers. However Ed Hersey, a spokesman of the city Corrections Department, said it was all right to have a patient with AIDS working on the food service line.

Phil Seelig, the president of the Correction Officers Benevolent Association, said he was astounded by such a statement and added the Association was willing to pay for a steak dinner for Mr. Hersey and the corrections' executive staff, provided it would be prepared and served by AIDS patients.

A spokesman for the city Health Department said there was no occupational listing for the 722 current AIDS victims in the city.

So far, two inmates have died of AIDS while in city prisons, with eight other inmates suspected of having AIDS.

The Westchester County jail has one AIDS patient. The guards wear caps, gowns, masks and gloves when they deal with this prisoner.

REAGAN'S HEALTH AIDES MEET GAYS

Washington, D.C.—White House assistant Judy Buckalow and Assistant Health and Human Services Secretary Tom Donnelly met with six gay leaders, including an AIDS victim, to discuss ways to fight the epidemic on June 21.

AIDS victim Michael Callen demanded $100 million in funding to end bureaucratic foot-dragging in the fight against the disease.

Callen, who got the disease two years ago, hopes to defy odds and survive even though most of the patients who got the disease then are now dead.

Virginia Apuzzo, head of National Gay Task Force, urged that federal health officials involve the gay community which has suffered 70 percent of the 1552 AIDS cases and 595 AIDS deaths in all efforts to defeat the epidemic, and that recognition be given to the gay health groups, especially the Gay Men's Health Crisis, that has worked on the fight against the epidemic for the last two years.

AIDS IN INFANTS

New York—At hearings before the State Senate Committee on Investigations in Albany, Dr. Arge Rubinstein of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in the Bronx testified that 25 babies have been treated so far this year in the Center for Children with AIDS; one case treated in 1981 and seven in 1982. He estimated that there are up to 50 children nationwide with AIDS. The illness has a mortality rate of about ten percent in children, and he expects it will increase with the child's age.

Doctors who testified at the hearing said that the number of AIDS cases could double by the end of the year and could spread beyond the four risk groups.

"It does now appear that AIDS should be considered potentially threatening to the health of the general population," said Dr. Neal Steigbigel of Montefiore Medical Center in the Bronx.

UNDERTAKERS REFUSE TO EMBALM AIDS VICTIMS

New York—In the latest scare, undertakers are refusing to embalm AIDS victims.

The embalming controversy arose when Randall Archibald, executive director of the State Funeral Directors Association, told a press conference, "We are confronted with a serious crisis."

Archibald called for a 60-day moratorium on embalming until undertakers get guidelines on a safe way to deal with the remains of AIDS victims.

"Until we know what the cause or cure is, we are not preparing the bodies for regular viewing," said John Gallaher, a funeral service director and member of the Metropolitan Funeral Directors Association.

"We and other embalming services will be very hesitant or even refuse to embalm bodies of people who die of AIDS," he said.

Another mortician who works for two major Manhattan funeral directors said he knew of two recent instances in which undertakers walked off the job rather than handle bodies of AIDS victims.

The undertaker, who declined to be identified said, "The union will eventually have to do something about it. There are four or five AIDS bodies a week in New York and none of us wants to work on those bodies. I know I don't."

Union officials could not be reached for comment.

Gallaher said funeral directors are only the latest group of workers to be wary of coming in contact with AIDS victims.

A decision to refuse to embalm AIDS victims goes a step beyond the funeral directors association's official position. Last month, the group sent a letter to funeral directors listing precautions that should be taken when handling the bodies of AIDS victims, including the wearing of disposable outer clothes, goggles and double sets of gloves.

However, Gallaher said many funeral directors are asking hospitals to immediately place the body in a sealed pouch. That pouch is then placed in a sealed container or coffin for burial or cremation.

Gov. Cuomo called this action "unfortunate" and said he had asked State Health Commissioner Dr. David Axelrod to "investigate all legal remedies available to insure that the civil rights and human dignity of AIDS victims' families are not compromised by this or any other action in New York State."

Recently a 55-year-old grandmother died of AIDS and the undertaker refused to pick up the body from the hospital morgue.

Mayor Koch said it was "abominable" concerning the refusal of the funeral home to accept the body of this AIDS victim. He added that under human rights law, funeral homes are considered places of public accommodation and may not discriminate on the basis of physical disability. He requested the state health commissioner to issue an emergency regulation barring funeral homes from turning away the bodies of AIDS victims.

FASHION DESIGNER IS AIDS VICTIM

New York—A well-known Brazilian fashion designer has died here of AIDS.

Marcus Goncalves ("Markito"), 31, who was known as the "designer to the stars," died June 4 at Bellevue Hospital. A Bellevue spokesman said Goncalves died of the common AIDS complication, Pneumocystus Pneumonia.

The designer had been in good health until three weeks before his death when he flew to New York for treatment.

Goncalves was famous for his flamboyant beaded evening gowns. His most famous creation was the sequined gown worn by Brazilian star Sonia Braga in "Eu Te Amo."

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR AIDS VICTIM

New York—About 1500 people attended a candlelight memorial service in Central Park Monday, June 13th, for Ken Ramsauer, a 27-year-old freelance lighting designer who died of AIDS May 23.

Ken died less than a year after he was diagnosed as having AIDS and four days after he was seen on an ABC-TV "20/20" interview with Geraldo Rivera.

Rivera said in a eulogy, "Kenny Ramsauer wanted the people of New York and of the country to learn about the disease. He wanted society to know the discrimination and negative publicity that has allowed this disease a moral head start."

Mayor Ed Koch, speaking at the memorial held at the bandstand, said the city would prosecute any business or person who discriminates against AIDS victims if such discrimination proves to be illegal.

UPROAR OVER TV APPEARANCE BY AIDS VICTIM

San Francisco—A TV producer's attempt to "take the hysteria out of AIDS" caused an uproar recently when the station technicians refused to be in the same studio with two AIDS victims who were to be interviewed.

Shortly before the broadcast of KGO-TV's "A.M. San Francisco" program, which featured doctors, public health workers and two AIDS victims, studio personnel refused to work if the AIDS patients were allowed in the studio, said Steve Ober, the show's producer.

On the air, the show's host described what had happened and said the two patients were being interviewed by phone from an adjoining room. They were never shown on camera. Later, at a press conference, the AIDS victims denounced what they said was "growing paranoia" against AIDS patients.

"I already have to cope with fighting for my life. I can't believe that I would have to be subjected to that kind of stress," said Paul Castro, 31.

Dr. Robert Bolan, a physician with many gay patients and a member of Bay Area Physicians for Human Rights, said AIDS research indicates virtually all cases of AIDS have been traced to either intimate sexual contact or exposure to contaminated blood. He added that "if the disease could be spread on a casual basis it would have shown up helter-skelter in the general public."

AIDS WARNINGS

San Francisco—Public Health Director Mervyn Silverman says he will require the city's gay baths to post health warnings about the dangers of contracting AIDS.

This decision has been endorsed by Mayor Dianne Feinstein and a majority of the Board of Supervisors.

Silverman said he would meet with gay business leaders and a spokesman for the bathhouses to try to reach a consensus on how to conduct an AIDS educational campaign not only in bathhouses but in bars and places "where sexually active gay men congregate."

Silverman says that the city has had 249 Bay Area AIDS cases, killing 72 of them since the first case was detected here two years ago. That's 25 percent of the nation's reported cases.

NUDITY OK IN GURU'S TOWN

Antelope, Ore.—Nudity will be permitted in a new city park under an ordinance passed unanimously by Antelope's City Council, which is dominated by followers of Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh.

The ordinance "setting aside city property for relaxation and recreation without wearing clothing" was proposed by council member Ma Deva Parmita and passed Tuesday night.

"The people of Antelope believe that the human body is beautiful," the ordinance says, and "wish to regain their innocence and get in touch with themselves and nature and learn to accept themselves totally as they are."

The council has only one member who is not a disciple of Rajneesh. The guru's followers took over the town government in elections last year after non-Rajneesh residents failed in an effort to disincorporate the central Oregon ranching town of about 40 people, the majority of whom are followers of Rajneesh.

Running time: 1 hr. 56 min.

TRADING PLACES is the laugh riot of the season. It's loaded with laughs and I highly recommend it.

Dan Aykroyd plays the wealthy, fastidious Louis Winthorpe III, an executive in one of Philadelphia's leading investment firms. Eddie Murphy plays Billy Ray Valentine, who is a con man from the ghetto. Ralph Bellamy and Don Ameche play the conniving Duke brothers, founders of the Duke and Duke Commodity brokerage firm where Winthorpe is a junior partner.

Denholm Elliott plays Winthorpe's funny butler. Jamie Lee Curtis plays Ophelia, the money-minded prostitute. Bo Diddley plays a ghetto pawnbroker. Kristin Holby plays Penelope, Winthorpe's stuffy WASP princess.

The fun begins with Billy pretending to be a blind, crippled Vietnam vet begging for money outside the Heritage Club where the brothers and Winthorpe are members. Trying to escape from the police, Billy collides with Winthorpe outside the club. Winthorpe assumes Billy is a mugger. He is finally apprehended by the police after a wild chase through the club.

The brothers decide that Billy is a product of a poor environment, with Randolph (Bellamy) saying to Mortimer (Ameche) that "given the right surroundings, I'll bet that man could run our company as well as young Winthorpe."

This leads to a one dollar bet between the brothers that Winthorpe would resort to a life of crime if he lost his job, home and friends.

The brothers bail Billy out of jail and in a funny scene they offer him Winthorpe's home, car, bank account, butler and an $80,000-a-year job with their company.

The brothers have stolen money planted on Winthorpe who is thrown in jail and robbed of his clothes. Penelope bails Winthorpe out but slaps him and runs off when Ophelia throws herself on him, kissing and begging him for a shot of heroin. Of course, she's a set-up and finally believes Winthorpe's story. Taking him home with her after he's refused admittance to his house and has his credit cards confiscated by the bank manager when he tries to cash a check.

In the meantime, Billy has increased the Duke fortunes.

Finally, Winthorpe and Billy's paths cross when Winthorpe sneaks into the Duke Christmas party dressed as Santa Claus. Billy Ray has overheard the Duke brothers discussing their little bet.

After Billy has explained the bet to Winthorpe, they concoct an elaborate revenge scheme and all ends well.

The film is filled with wacky scenes with much credit to John Landis, the young director who directed "Animal House" and "An American Werewolf in London," who kept the action moving at a good pace. Timothy Harris and Herschel Weingrod are to be commended for their humorous script.

All the acting is first-rate. It was a joy to see Ameche and Bellamy as the Duke brothers, as well as Denholm Elliott as the butler.

Eddie Murphy is a special talent and I'm sure we'll see much more of him in future films. And it's Dan Aykroyd's best film to date. It's also a good role for Jamie Lee Curtis who became known for her roles in horror movies. Ophelia is a delightful change for this talented performer who is the daughter of Janet Leigh and Tony Curtis.

"THE MAN WITH TWO BRAINS"

Warner Bros.
Running time: 93 min.

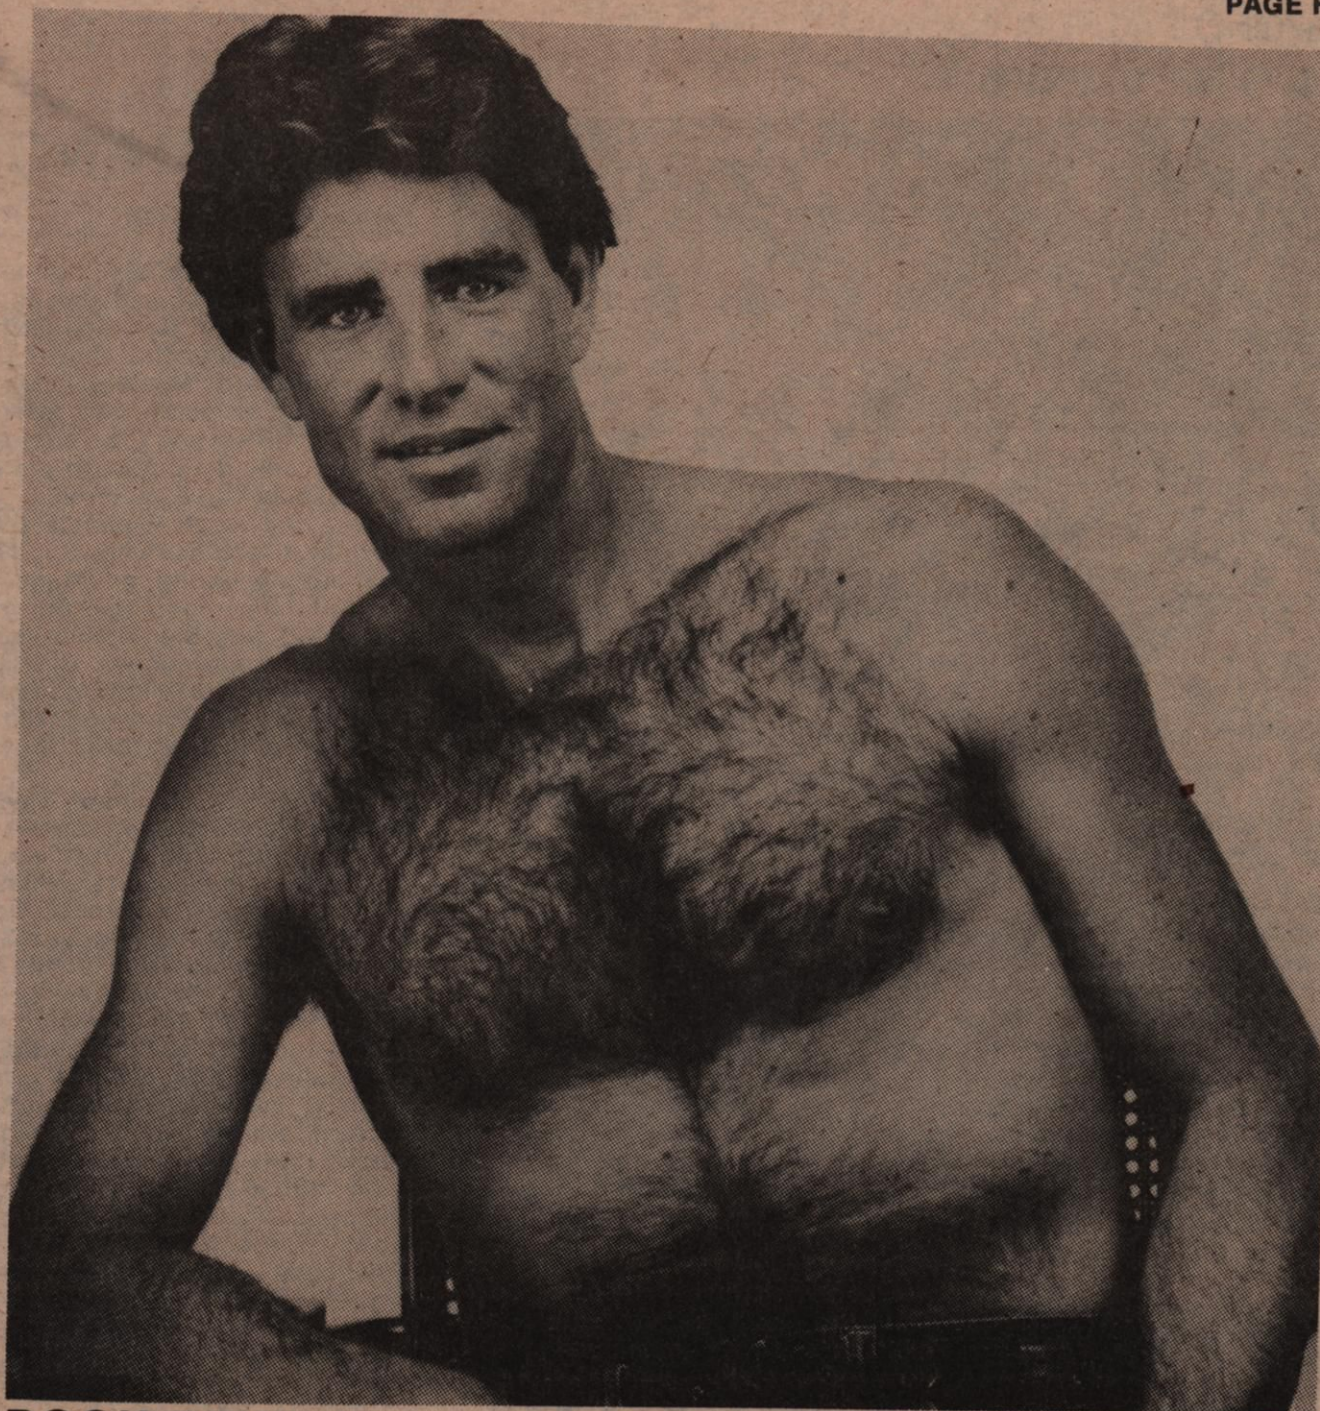

I'm a big Steve Martin fan, but Steve has got to get a better script than this one. It's too complex and has very few funny lines, none of them hilarious.

Carl Reiner, who helped write the script with Martin and George Gipe, directed the film.

Martin is a famous brain surgeon who has developed a screwtop method of operation. He saves the life of a beautiful woman (Kathleen Turner) whom he accidentally hits with his car and marries her. She withholds her sexual favors from Martin while sucking on his finger, driving him crazy with frustration. In one scene he holds his hat over his erection, then breaking the glass when he presses close to the window, saying, "The fresh air feels good."

Then Martin decides to take his wife to Vienna for a honeymoon. There he meets Davis Warner, a mad scientist who keeps brains alive in his lab. Martin falls for the brain in a jar of a young woman who was the victim of the elevator killer.

When Martin's nasty wife becomes the victim of the elevator killer, he takes her body to Warner who transfers the brain into her body with a surprise ending, as well as the identity of the killer.

"LET'S TALK SEX"

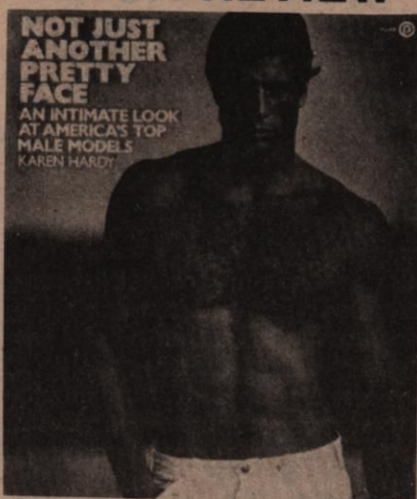

(A Straight X-Rated Movie)
Caballero Control Corp.
Running time: 85 min.

LET'S TALK SEX probes the dial-a-sex phenomenon that's popular today. A West Coast movie, it features some new faces and bodies.

Kevin James fantasizes sex with his stepmother, Patricia Manning, in the bathtub while Don Hart has a hot session with two T-shirt girls, Alexandria and Julie Parton. Tom Byron and Marlene Matthews, as the young virgin couple are instructed as to how to do "it" by a sexy female. Herschel Savage wears a red carnation and meets his jerk-off female partner in person. The highlight and sexiest scene is the opening of the film during which David Cannon imagines he's an intruder who rapes a nurse (Bridgette Monet).

David Cannon is a refreshing new actor with a handsome face, great body and a cock that won't stop! I first saw David as a featured actor in TALK DIRTY TO ME, Part II about a year ago.

Production value of the film is high with Paul G. Vatel as Director/Photographer/co-script writer. The film is dubbed, which could have been better. Some of the dialogue could have been improved, especially the scene with the two virgins.

Plume Paperback—$11.95

5-6-7-8-DANCE

Radio City Music Hall

This new musical starring Sandy Duncan just doesn't add up. Sandy and her husband Don Correia, are fine dancers, but the show's producer, Bernard Gersten, failed to get a book to match their talents. Sandy and Don are top-notch performers and delightful to watch. They deserve better material.

First, the musical numbers are too busy, especially when Sandy or Don are appearing on stage. In some of the numbers they bring on everything but the kitchen sink. There's ships, airplanes, dressing rooms, with lots of dancers, singers and 39 Rockettes. Big is not necessarily the best in this case.

The talent of the great Amelia McQueen is completely wasted on two dull numbers. Bill Irwin, a gifted mime, is stuck in a silly running gag about a dancer from Secaucus trying to get into the show. And Ken Sacha, a female impersonator, is embarrassing as Bette Midler. It's tacky and unfunny. That doesn't leave much that's outstanding. However it may prove to be a good tourist attraction since it allows one to see the Music Hall and the Rockettes along with Sandy and Don at a cheaper admission than Broadway shows. There is a brief and interesting appearance by the legendary Marge Champion with Don and some film footage of the Champions from their movies.

Ron Field (who directed Sandy in PETER PAN) directed and choreographed the musical, with split screen projections by Christopher Dixon. There's some interesting clips of the Rockettes performing for the Navy on V-Day.

Taking My Turn
Entermedia Theatre

TAKING MY TURN is an entertaining musical celebration in song and patter about aging. It features eight gifted entertainers—Margaret Whiting, Marni Nixon, Sheila Smith, Cissy Houston, Tiger Haynes, Victor Griffin, Mace Barrett and Ted Thurston. All have impressive credits as performers.

They talk and sing about the problems and joys of aging with music by Gary William Friedman and lyrics by Will Holt. Robert H. Livingston served as director/adaptor.

All the selections are pleasant, but I especially liked Victor Griffin's "The Kite," Sheila Smith's "Two of Me," and Cissy Houston's "I Am Not Old," which is a showstopper.

I would like to have seen a better set and more interesting staging.

PASSION

Longacre Theatre

There isn't much passion in PASSION—a lot of talk and little action.

It's about James, an art restorer, his wife Eleanor, a voice teacher and Kate, a young widow James has an affair with, along with James and Eleanor's alter egos. Along with the dialogue often between the four or five characters, there are the strains of Bach's St. Matthew's Passion and Mozart's Requiem and it gets confusing.

Eleanor is played by Cathryn Damon with E. Katherine Kerr as her alter ego. James is played by Bob Gunton with Frank Langella as his alter ego. Roxanne Hart is Kate and Stephanie Gordon is Agnes, a friend of the family.

PASSION is by British playwright Peter Nichols who is best known for his films A DAY IN THE DEATH OF JOE EGG, THE NATIONAL HEALTH and PRIVATES ON PARADE. Some of the actors speak with an English accent and some don't. All the performances are good, but I would like to see the actors in another play.

The alter egos are dressed the same as the characters they represent. Since Mrs. Damon and Ms. Kerr look somewhat alike, it adds to the confusion when all the characters are on stage talking back and forth and at times exchanging characters.

Even the set by John Lee Beatty is confusing which is basically the couple's living room, becoming a restaurant, a boutique, Kate's apartment, a public phone booth, etc.

was hysterical during the press screening I attended. And so was I.

This sequel to Hitchcock's 1960 suspense classic was filmed in 33 days at a cost of $4 million and doesn't have any of the suspense that the original had.

The film opens with the black and white shower murder of Janet Leigh then takes up the story of Norman Bates' (Perkins) release from a mental institution on the recommendation of his psychiatrist, Dr. Raymond (Robert Loggia), over the objections of Lila Loomis (Vera Miles) whose sister (Leigh) was murdered by Norman. Norman returns to the old house on the hill and the Bates Motel. He goes to work as a cook's assistant at a local diner where he befriends a young waitress, Mary (Meg Tilly). Norman moves her into the spare bedroom when she's locked out of the apartment she shares with a boyfriend. Then it starts again—the notes and the phone calls from his mother. Norman stammers over the pronunciation of "cutlery," rolls his eyes, and makes faces throwing suspicion on him when the manager of the motel disappears after Norman fires him for running a sleazy place.

There is some blood and gore as other people are killed, but I won't divulge any more of the plot. You won't be frightened, but you will be amused. And you can bet there will be a PSYCHO III when you see the ending of PSYCHO II.

SUPERMAN III

A Warner Bros. Release
Running time: 125 min.
Director: Richard Lester
Starring: Christopher Reeve, Richard Pryor, Annette O'Toole, Margot Kidder, Robert Vaughan, Pamela Stephenson.

Suffering under the weight of a lackluster script (David and Leslie Newman) and very confused director (Richard Lester), the latest chapter in the saga of the Man of Steel, huffs and puffs and hardly gets off the ground. Pity, too, for the possibilities are still fresh for some top-notch adventures, but SUPERMAN III is tedious enough and dull enough to put an end to the series.

The direction by Lester is a big problem here: after a funny, slapstick beginning, the film never again maintains a set tone: SUPERMAN III suffers a good deal from paranoia. On hand (for an extra million at the B.O., no doubt) is Richard Pryor as the villain. Pryor's performance is uneven, too—funny in a buffoonish way for awhile; then loud and crass at other times. This, unfortunately, is the problem with Pryor—he works too hard to make non-funny vehicles funny and he's beginning to look a lot like Jerry Lewis.

Actually, Christopher Reeve is at his best here. He's looser and more at ease. He does a better job at acting—but is that what the youth of America wants? Lois Lane (Margot Kidder) all but disappears this time around and Clark Kent is sent to his old hometown to cover his high school reunion. He gets involved with old crush Lana Lang (Annette O'Toole). At the same time, our villains Robert Vaughan and Richard Pryor are plotting to overtake the world and must subdue their foe, Superman, with a good dose of Kryptonite. After this dose, our Superman becomes an unshaven, women-chasing man and battles with his alter ego. Sound confusing? It is.

There aren't enough special effects to keep this boiling. There's too much plot and it isn't very good. Aside from some good comic sequences, the film has a deadly pace. It doesn't zip along like Part II. Sorely missed are Gene Hackman and Valerie Perrine. On hand for the ride here are Annie Ross as Vaughan's diabolical sister; Pamela Stephenson as Vaughan's dumb blonde mistress who gets to seduce Superman and Jackie Cooper and Marc McClure as his boss and co-worker at the Daily Planet.

This new edition sadly hasn't enough pizzazz to make people care if there's another chapter. Too bad, because with the proper stories, it would have been nice to have Superman around every two years. Now I'm not so sure.

Octopussy

A United Artists Release
Running time: 130 min.
Director: John Glen

Starring: Roger Moore, Louis Jordan, Maud Adams, Kristina Wayborn.

Though there may not always be a Superman on screen, I suppose there'll always be a James Bond. In this, the thirteenth Bond epic, Roger Moore returns as 007 and he and everyone else is in perfect shape. In fact, Moore gives his best performance as Bond here—far surpassing his work in

MOONRAKER, THE SPY WHO LOVED ME and FOR YOUR EYES ONLY

In reality, and especially in my case, most of the Bond films are fairly interchangeable in one's mind. True, individual sequences do stand out, but the films, I believe, are to be savored while they're watched.

Watching the last few episodes in dapper 007's adventures one surely had the feeling of déjà vu. The jokes were tired and the action predictable. Not in the latest. The production is gorgeous and India looks stunning. The action sequences, which are first-rate, are directed at breakneck speed.

All the Bonds have villains and here are three: Louis Jourdan as Kamal Khan; Maud Adams as Octopussy, a smuggler of jewels and Kristina Wayborn as Khan's mistress. There are good effects, exciting chases (on a train), sexy Octopussy girls, suspense, danger, jokes and a theme song sung by Rita Coolidge called "All Time High."

In the Bond series, OCTOPUSSY may not be an all-time high, but it is up there and will provide you with a fast, crackerjack, devilishly thrilling way to spend a few summer hours.

TWILIGHT ZONE—The Movie

A Warner Bros. Release
Running time: 102 min.

Directors: John Landis, Steven Spielberg, Joe Dante, George Miller

Starring: Vic Morrow, Dan Aykroyd, Albert Brooks, Scatman Crothers, Kathleen Quinlan, John Lithgow

It seems everything at the movies is recycled this summer—why not an old TV program (at least 3 episodes). The big mystery here is why, with all the creative talent aboard, couldn't they make an original film? Instead, three old stories from Twilight Zone's TV series have been blown up and reproduced for the big screen. The results is a mixed bag indeed.

Rod Serling's Twilight Zone on TV, after a slow start, became an enormously successful series. There was nothing like it at the time and science fiction aficionados ate it up. The quality varied weekly, but there were some humdingers. The program is still running as a syndicated series in many cities. Why couldn't Warner Bros. and all the immensely talented people on hand develop some new works?

The film gets off to a smashing start via a prologue with Dan Aykroyd and Albert Brooks riding in a car down a dark, lonely highway. The few minutes are extremely funny and should set the pace for what's to come. It does not. The first episode is the one that got all the publicity last year when Vic Morrow and two Vietnamese children were killed by a helicopter. Morrow gives a strong, tough performance as a bigot who is transported in time and becomes a victim of the KKK and the Nazis. It is the film's weakest episode, sloppily directed by John Landis. It is also the only episode of the three that is original.

The second isn't much better. Scatman Crothers plays a senior citizen who travels from old age home to old age home, promoting good will and convincing people they have something to live for. The episode is rather dull and directed by Steven Spielberg unexcitingly.

The third episode is only a trifle better. Kathleen Quinlan meets a young boy in a diner and he takes her home to a house full of loonies. Televisions are blaring cartoons and we soon see the boy (Jeremy Licht) has supernatural powers. Some of this is amusing and eerily photographed. This is directed by Joe Dante. It builds up nicely, but goes nowhere. There are a few scary effects.

They saved the best for last. And what a whopper it is. Directed by George Miller (ROAD WARRIOR), it tells the story of a man who during a flight in a thunderstorm, sees an alien ripping up the airplane. Is he sane or insane? John Lithgow is terrific as the distraught passenger. This episode is based on "Nightmare at 20,000 Feet" and it brings an otherwise fair to middling package to life for 20 minutes.

Fanny & Alexander

An Embassy Picture Release
Running time: 190 min.

Director: Ingmar Bergman

Starring: Erland Josephson, Jarl Kulle, Gunn Wallgren, Jan Malmsjo

For over 30 years, Sweden's Ingmar Bergman has been directing films. His latest, "Fanny and Alexander," he says, will be his last. If it is (sadly) true, what a way to bow out! For this, his final commercial film, is a splendid, touching masterpiece—a totally involving and unforgettable experience. With the help of his cinematographer, Sven Nykvist, he has given us a lovely work—a film that creates a rich and vibrant tapestry of the Ekdahl family in the Sweden of 1907.

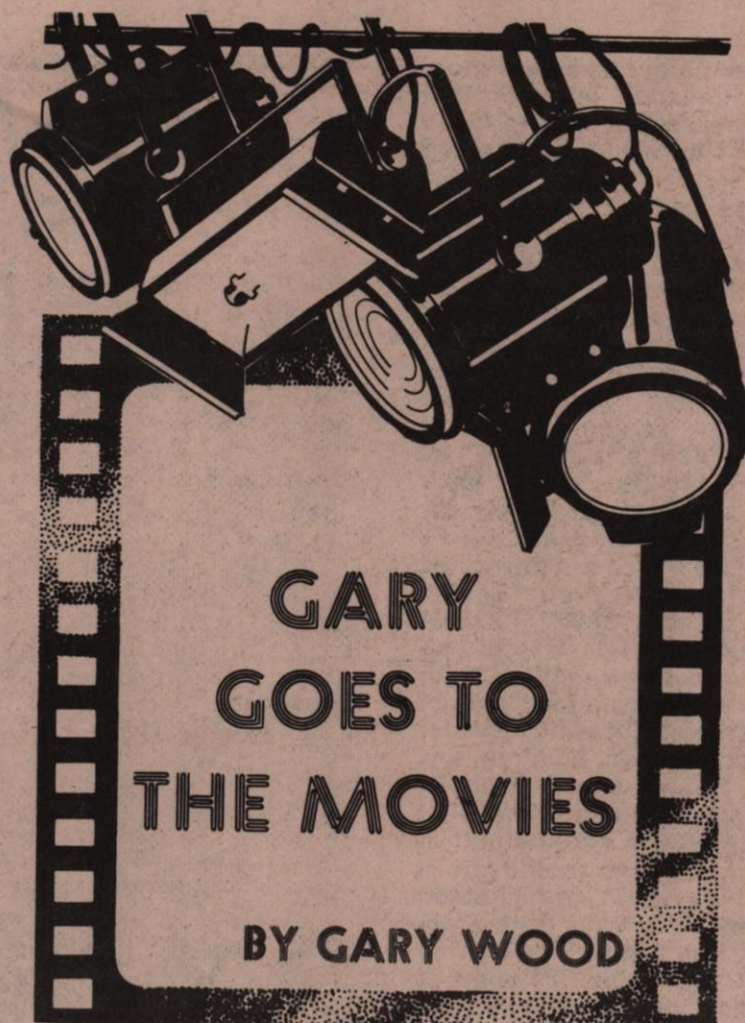

This is the story of the Ekdahls, a large theatrical family. Their comings and goings are seen through the eyes of Fanny and Alexander, two vibrant youngsters who enjoy life in the big house. The opening of this grand epic is a big Christmas party—like no other you've seen on film. The huge house is full of trees, ornaments and every imaginable food. The colors are so rich, everything seems to stand out.

After the children's father suffers a stroke on stage and dies in the mansion, the children's mother, still young and beautiful, marries the town's bishop, a strict, severe man. The scene switches from the Ekdahl's sumptuous mansion to the grey, stark home of the bishop. The bishop (Jan Malmsjo) is a man who rules with an iron hand. He's particularly hard on Fanny and Alexander and keeps them virtual prisoners in his home. Life has changed for the two youths and we are now witness to their terrifying existence.

FANNY AND ALEXANDER is really almost two films. The lives of the two children are almost split into two segments. The picture Bergman paints is passionate, colorful, cheerful and depressing. It is a rich, full canvas, exhilarating at times, bleak at others. It is always beautifully performed and superbly photographed. Whatever its minor shortcomings, you are always aware of watching the work of a master.

Briefs: Based on a Georges Simenon novel "L'Etoile du Nord" is a mild murder mystery with no surprises, but with good performances by Philippe Noiret and Simone Signoret....Eric Idle, Graham Chapman, Peter Boyle, Cheech & Chong, Peter Cook, Marty Feldman, Madeline Kahn, Martin Hewitt, James Mason and John Cleese all fall on their faces in "Yellowbeard," one of the unfunniest comedies ever. Everyone tries in vain to pump some wit into this fiasco. Watching them huff and puff really knocks you out....Peter Greenaway's "The Draughtman's Contract" is a 17th Century whodunit that's beautifully filmed but ultimately exasperating and perplexing. The style, too, is a bit suffocating...After languishing for a year on the shelf, Wim Wender's "Hammett," produced by Francis Ford Coppola, is being released. Frederic Forest plays Dashell Hammett in a fictionalized murder mystery set in San Francisco's Chinatown of the 30s. Coppola's set designer, Dean Tavoularis, gives it more style than it needs for basically "Hammett" is second-rate stuff, done better by Warner Bros. in the 30s and 40s. However, Marilu Henner is sexy and convincing... A must for all film buffs for the next two weeks is the Film Forum's Louise Brooks program—a feature ("Prix de Beaute") and "A Conversation" with her. More on that next issue. Plus, a report on the benefit performance of the restored print of the Cukor-Garland 1954 "A Star Is Born," taking place July 7 at Radio City Music Hall.

REMEMBERING NORMA

She was born in 1900 or 1902. The records differ. She came from a middle-class family in Montreal. In the early 20s, she went to Hollywood and made many silent films. Florenz Ziefeld said she didn't have what it took for the stage. In Hollywood, however, Louis B. Mayer and Irving Thalberg felt differently.

Norma Shearer had a great career in Hollywood. She made the transition from silents to sound easily. Hollywood (and MGM) needed a lady and she was it.

She had grace, elegance and talent whether it be comedy or drama. Her career spanned more than two decades in roles that many actresses would have killed for. It didn't hurt that she married the boss.

I first saw her in "The Women," the hilarious comedy in which she holds her own opposite Joan Crawford, Rosalind Russell and all the others. I was very fortunate to see her in the rarely-shown "A Free Soul" with Clark Gable and Lionel Barrymore. Then opposite Gable again in the screen version of Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude." Opposite Robert Montgomery, she was positively radiant as Amanda in Noel Coward's "Private Lives." She glowed as Moonjean in the first "Smilin' Through" as the object of Leslie Howard's and Fredric March's affections. I recently caught up with her Oscar-winning performance in "The Divorcee" opposite Chester Morris and Robert Montgomery. What a lovely Juliet opposite Leslie Howard's Romeo. And what a beguiling "Marie Antoinette."

Some day I'd love to see her in "The Student Prince" with Ramon Navarro and "He Who Gets Slapped" with Lon Chaney as well as opposite Clark Gable in Robert E. Sherwood's "Idiot's Delight." In New York, one can hope that these will some day show.

The Thalberg/Shearer marriage lasted for 10 years—he died of pneumonia at 37 in 1937. Norma's career waned a bit after that and she bowed out gracefully after "Her Cardboard Lover" in 1942. In that year she married ski instructor Martin Arrouge and never returned to the screen. For Norma Shearer lovers is was a great loss.

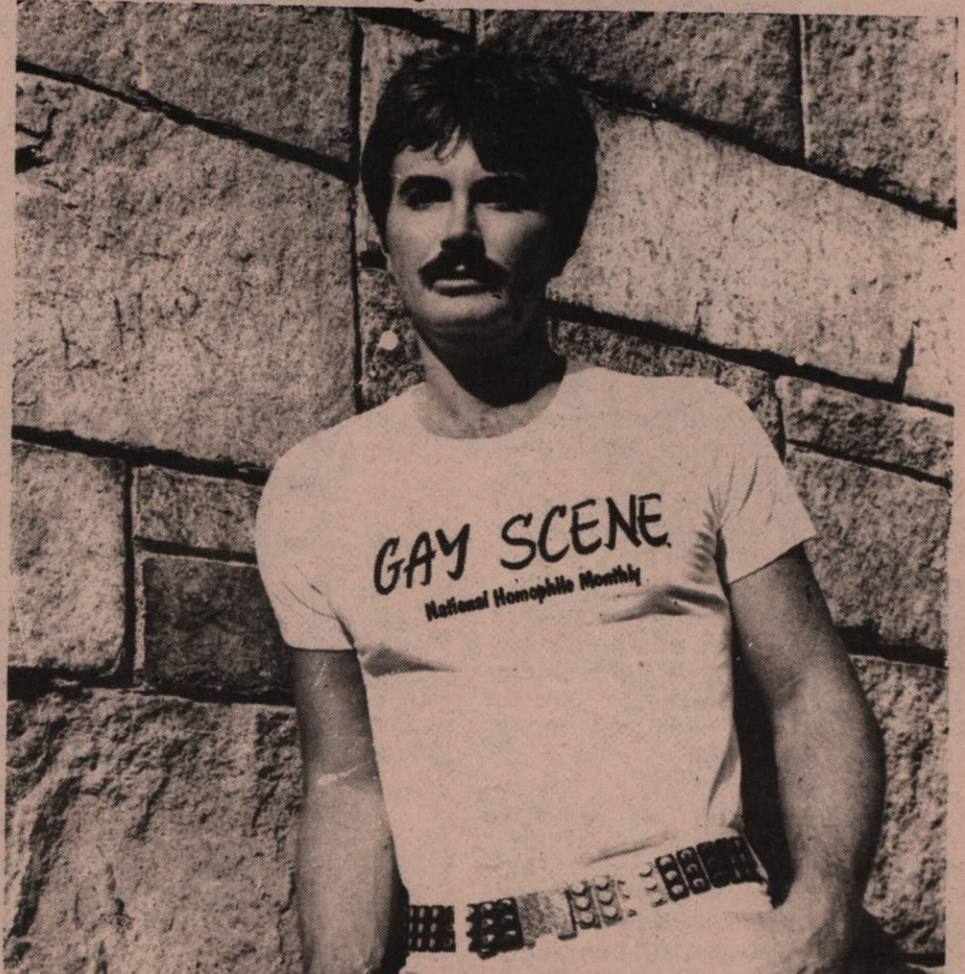

Although she lived a reclusive life for the good part of her later years, her films entertained and thrilled many a fan. Norma Shearer was always a lady—and a very talented one at that. Her loss is great, but thanks to revival houses all over the world, her memory will linger on.

In Memoriam

Burnett Guffey

Cinematographer Burnett Guffey, 78, winner of Academy Awards for the films "From Here to Eternity" in 1953 and "Bonnie and Clyde" in 1967, died May 30.

Guffey, who entered films in 1923 in the old William Fox Studio, achieved his first major credit with "The Informer," John Ford's classic 1935 tale of betrayal during the Irish rebellion. His other films included "Cover Girl," "Foreign Correspondent" and "The Great White Hope."

Jack Dempsey

Jack Dempsey, 87, former heavyweight champion of the world from 1919 to 1926, died May 31. He was known to Broadwayites as the host of a restaurant bearing his name in the Brill Building, the onetime capitol of the songwriting world, where he greeted thousands of writers, entertainers, sports figures and tourists.

Dempsey was virtually the first of the big-money champions. He was briefly an actor as the star of a film serial generally shown for the matinee trade on Saturdays. He also made personal appearances in vaudeville houses during the 1920s.

Born William Harrison Dempsey of Irish parents in Manassa, Colorado, Dempsey preferred to be called Jack. He was married four times, two of his wives were the film actress Estelle Taylor, who later appeared in vaudeville, and singer Hannah Williams. His fourth wife and an adopted daughter survive.

Jacqueline Logan

Jacqueline Logan, 78, silent film leading lady, remembered for her portrayal of Mary Magdalene in Cecil B. DeMille's 1927 "King of Kings," died April 4.

Born in Corsicana, Texas, she started her acting career for the Shuberts and appeared in the "Ziegfeld Follies" before being signed to a film contract and making her debut in the 1921 "A Perfect Crime."

Rex Gosden

Country music songwriter Rex Gosden died of a heart attack on May 23 at the age of 45.

Gosden, brother of singer Vern Gosden, wrote more than 40 songs, including George Jones' hit "Someday Our Day Will Come," and Leon Everett's "Give Me What You Think Is Fair."

Norma Shearer

Norma Shearer, one of the reigning Hollywood superstars of the 30s, died June 12th at the age of 82.

The career of the brown-haired, gray-eyed Canadian-born actress began in 1920, but soared after her marriage in 1927 to Irving Thalberg, the reigning genius and "boy wonder" at MGM.

She won an Academy Award for best actress in the 1929 film "The Divorcee," and was nominated for five other Oscars.

Her best known roles were in "Romeo and Juliet," "Marie Antoinette," "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and "The Women."

She also scored screen triumphs in "Idiot's Delight," opposite Clark Gable, and other pictures including "A Free Soul," "Strange Interlude," and "Smilin' Through."

Thalberg died unexpectedly, soon after producing "Romeo and Juliet," in 1936.

His death left her a millionairess—with an estate valued at $4.5 million before taxes.

The grief-stricken Miss Shearer returned to films for several years after his death to complete her last few pictures.

She married Martin Arrouge, a ski instructor 10 years her junior, in 1942, and lived the rest of her life in semi-seclusion, declining most interviews and public appearances.

She and Thalberg had two children—Irving, 52, and Katherine, 47.

In recent years, her vision impaired by a stroke, she lived in the Woodland actors' hospital where her husband was a faithful visitor.

The actress was born Aug. 10, 1900 in Westmount, a suburb of Montreal.

She left school at age 14 to begin a stage career. To finance a 1920 trip to New York, the family piano was sold.

Miss Shearer later played piano in picture theatres while she and her sister, Athole, took minor parts on Broadway, and bits in films shot in New York City.

Thalberg spotted her in one of these cameo roles, and tracked her down in 1923.

In Hollywood, Miss Shearer gained lead roles, but only after she married Thalberg did she have her choice of plum roles and top directors.

After her husband's death, she turned down starring roles in "Gone With the Wind" and "Mrs. Miniver," appearing instead in two successive flops—"We Were Dancing" and "Her Cardboard Lover."

Hans Leip

Hans Leip, 89, the German who wrote the lyrics to the WW II hit song "Lili Marlene," died at his home in Switzerland on June 6.

Leip said he was stationed in Berlin with the German Army in 1914 and had two girlfriends—Lili and Marlene. Lili was the daughter of a Berlin businessman and Marlene an army nurse. Standing guard one night under a lamppost, the first three verses came to the author but he failed to finish it until 1937.

The lyrics were set to music by Norbert Schultze. Eventually it was adopted by allied soldiers.

Frank O'Connor

Television producer Frank O'Connor, whose shows collected several Emmy nominations and won Peabody and Golden Globe awards, has died at age 65.

One of O'Connor's first productions was "Kay Kyser's College of Musical Knowledge."

His most honored show was the 1971 telecast of Paul Gallico's "The Snow Goose," a Hallmark Hall of Fame production that got nine Emmy nominations and won a Peabody Award, Golden Globe and a top prize at the Monte Carlo Film Festival.

His 1970 production of "Hamlet," starring Richard Chamberlain, received 13 Emmy nominations.

O'Connor began in the entertainment business as a producer-director for the J. Walter Thompson ad agency. He joined MCA-Universal in 1965 as vice president in charge of special projects, and in 1977 became an independent producer.

In 1980, O'Connor began producing the syndicated "Father Peyton Family Theatre," TV shows on the theme of the Catholic rosary. Those appearing in the half-hour segments included Princess Grace, Frank Sinatra and Mother Teresa.

Nadia Reisenberg

Nadia Reisenberg, a pianist and teacher whose technique was praised by Sergei Rachmaninoff, died June 10 at the age of 78.

She was a frequent soloist with major orchestras in this country and in Europe, and she taught at the Juilliard School, the Mannes College of Music and Queens College, as well as privately.

Born in Vilna, Russia, Reisenberg studied at the Imperial Conservatory of St. Petersburg and later came to the United States, where she studied with Alexander Lambert and Josef Hoffman.

Her students included Richard Goode, who won the Avery Fisher Award in 1980, Myung-Whun Chung and Andrew Litton, now an assistant conductor with the National Symphony in Washington.

Juan Tors

Ivan Tors, 67, Hungarian-born producer and film director who made the long-running "Flipper" film and television series among others, died June 4.

Educated at the U. of Budapest and Fordham U., while still in Europe he wrote numerous plays.

His film credits also include "Rhino," "Flipper's New Adventure," "Zebra in the Kitchen," "Clarence the Cross-eyed Lion," "Around the World Under the Sea," "Birds Do It," "Namu, The Killer Whale," "Africa, Texas Style," "Gentle Giant," "Daring Game," "Hell, Down There," "Island of the Lost," and "The Aquarians."

For TV he did "Flipper," "Daktari," "Cowboy in Africa," "Gentle Ben," "Jambo," "Primus,"

"Elephant Country," and NBC-TV specials, and 26 segments of "Encyclopedia of Wildlife," three one-hour specials on "Orientation and Navigation," "Labyrinth of Odor," "Pain in Nature" and "Danny and the Mermaid."

Peter Mennin

Peter Mennin, 60, distinguished composer and president of the Juilliard School since 1962, died June 17th.

Born in Erie, Pa., Mennin studied at the Oberlin Conservatory of Music and received his doctorate at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester in 1945 after serving with the U.S. Army Air Forces during WWII.

He taught composition at Juilliard from 1947-58, when he was appointed director of the Peabody Conservatory of Music in Baltimore. He returned to Juilliard as president in 1962, a post he held until his death.

Mennin, who had his Symphony No. 8 performed by the New York Philharmonic in 1974 at Avery Fisher Hall, left unfinished a flute concerto which the Philharmonic had scheduled for this past spring, but which was postponed.

In February, 1982, Mennin's Symphony No. 9, written for the National Symphony, Washington, D.C., Mstislav Rostropovich, music director, was given its premiere in Peking. The National Symphony did the world premiere in 1981.

Larry Hooper

Larry Hooper, 66, a singer and pianist on the "Lawrence Welk Show," died June 10.

Hooper joined Welk's champagne music makers in 1948 as a pianist, but because of his deep voice, Welk asked him to try out "Oh Happy Day" on the air. He sang with the band until his retirement in 1981.

Alberto E. Ginastera

Alberto E. Ginastera, 67, Argentina's best-known composer died June 25.

His works include the ballet "Estancia," the symphonic poem "Ollantay," music for the movie "Caballito Criollo," "Concert Variations," "Obertura Para El Fausto Criollo" (Overture for the Naive Faust), and the operas "Bomarzo" and "Beatrice Cenci."

The significance of bodily germs and secretions to disease transmission through food and water pollution and public sanitation is well recognized, whereas —

The significance of bodily germs and secretions to disease transmission through sex contact unfortunately has not been taught to the public.

Almost 100 years after universal acceptance of the germ theory of disease, it is appalling that every male and female is still not being taught the responsibility to wash genital and rectal areas before and after sex contact, eliminating those acquired and one's own germs and secretions, in protection of one's own health and that of one's sex partner.

An important health factor is remembering the lower digestive tract as a source of infectious germs including those which may cause urethritis in the male and vaginitis in the female. Here are some highlights from our widely acclaimed booklet (Available in English, French and Spanish.)

THE NEW VENEREAL DISEASE PREVENTION FOR EVERYONE

Personal Hygiene is Significant to VD PREVENTION and Good Health
Not to teach washing before and after sex contact is to encourage the spread of sexually transmitted diseases.

PAGE 2: PERSONAL HYGIENE - WASHING THE SEXUALLY ACTIVE MALE

Careful washing after sex contact will reduce the possibility of catching VD. The germs that cause syphilis and gonorrhea, as well as some other sexually transmitted diseases, are sensitive to soap and water.

WASH BEFORE SEX CONTACT FOR HYGIENIC PURPOSES

IMMEDIATELY AFTER INTERCOURSE:

Soap genitals working a bit of soft mushy soap into urinary opening.

Rinse.

Repeat procedure.

Then urinate (which may sting).

Extended exposure or delay before washing diminishes the effectiveness of this preventive measure. Washing is doubly important since even in the absence of syphilis and gonorrhea, other sexually transmitted germs can cause infections such as NGU (non-gonococcal urethritis) or NSU (non-specific urethritis).

If lubricants are involved in the sex act, use watersoluble preparations that will wash away. Do not use an oil base that will leave a film to trap the germs.

NOTE: The foreskin that covers the head of the penis may trap germs which can cause infections. Therefore, special attention should be given to washing the uncircumcised penis.

When vaccines against gonorrhea and syphilis will have been developed, personal hygiene will remain necessary to prevent other sexually transmitted diseases. For example: A gonorrhea vaccine will not prevent approximately half of the reported cases of male urethritis which are not gonorrhea.

PAGE 3: SOME ASPECTS OF PERSONAL HYGIENE AND DISEASE PREVENTION FOR MALE AND FEMALE

Infectious germs which are always found in the lower digestive tract may be transmitted from the rectum during sex activities. Among the dangerous germs present may be the virus which causes hepatitis, and parasites which cause gastro-intestinal disorders if they enter the mouth (anal-oral route).

The male and female mucous membranes (especially those of the genito-urinary system) are highly susceptible to infection by some of these germs from the rectum, which may cause urethritis in the male and vaginitis in the female. For example: as a result of careless wiping from rectum toward vagina by the female after toilet, germs are easily spread to the vagina where they may cause infections, and from which they may be transmitted during vaginal as well as rectal intercourse. Therefore, females must not wipe in the direction of rectum to vagina . . .

Personal hygiene before and after sex contact can be greatly aided by the bidet, a low bathroom fixture, designed to facilitate washing for disease prevention and proper cleansing after toilet. Not everyone, unfortunately, has been adequately informed as to the advantages of the bidet. It is not found, for instance, in homes or hotels in the United States, whereas in many parts of the world it is widely used and significant to personal hygiene. Good hygiene requires careful washing of genital and rectal areas before and after sex activities.

Men and Women: Learn also about—

The significance during treatment of no sex contact which may spread the disease, and particularly during treatment for urethritis, no alcohol which may irritate the GU system, delaying cure. The importance of a follow-up visit to the physician to see if further treatment is required.

For the sexually active male only — the germicidal preparation (Sanitube®) for use after intercourse to prevent gonorrhea and syphilis, available in U.S.A. from certain pharmacists or Sanitube Co., Mt. Kisco, N.Y. 10549.

For the sexually active female — certain commercially available vaginal contraceptive foams, creams, suppositories and jellies, which also have germicidal properties that may prevent VD.
