Congress Urged to Drop "AIDS Education"

WASHINGTON, D.C. (PRNewswire) -- The nation's largest pro-family women's organization released its "short list" of legislative priorities for the remainder of the 104th Congress. Beverly LaHaye, president of Concerned Women for America (CWA), released the following statement:

CWA applauds the House for keeping the promises in the "Contract With America" and we call upon the Senate to pass the House measures on welfare reform and tax relief for families, in particular. We also urge the House and Senate to take up the following issues that are critically important to restoring strength to America's Families:

END TAXPAYER FUNDING FOR ABORTION: Get the government out of the abortion business. Defund the domestic and international taxpayer-subsidized abortion industry so that abortion is no longer promoted as a method of "family planning." No taxpayer funding of fetal tissue harvesting and human embryo experimentation. No importation and marketing of the RU-486 death pill.

EDUCATION REFORM AND PARENTAL CHOICE: Return the jurisdiction over education back to states and localities by repealing Goals 2000, dismantling the Department of Education, and enacting tuition tax credits for parents to choose their children's schooling.

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY: Pass a constitutional amendment to put an end to in public schools.

PORNOGRAPHY: Toughen law enforcement against child pornography, including the peddling of porn on the Internet. Privatize the National Endowment for the Arts and other government "ministries of culture."

We urge this Congress to finally start defunding the left and remedying harmful government policies that have undermined the family. Passing these measures is a necessary beginning.

CBS TV Reporter Recalled After Anti-Gay Remarks

NEW YORK (Reuters) - CBS TV golf analyst Ben Wright was recalled to New York Friday to meet with network officials following his reported remarks that lesbians hurt the sport of women's golf and that women golfers are handicapped by having breasts.

"Ben Wright will meet with CBS Sports in New York to address statements attributed to him in recent news reports," a CBS statement said. "For that reason he will not appear in Friday's coverage of the LPGA championship."

Wright, 62, has been a CBS golf analyst for 23 years and was in Wilmington, Del., to cover the Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship to be broadcast by the network Saturday and Sunday.

Wright was quoted in Friday's edition of The News Journal of Wilmington, Del. as saying that lesbians in women's golf made it difficult for the sport to win sponsorship and television coverage.

NEW YORK (Reuter) - CBS TV golf analyst Ben Wright was recalled to New York Friday to meet with network officials following his reported remarks that lesbians hurt the sport of women's golf and that women golfers are handicapped by having breasts.

Wright was quoted in Friday's edition of The News Journal of Wilmington, Del. as saying that lesbians in women's golf made it difficult for the sport to win sponsorship and television coverage.

"Let's face facts," Wright reportedly said in an interview. "Lesbians in the sport hurt women's golf. It's paraded. There's a defiance in them in the past decade."

Wright, whose reported comments drew disapproving responses from golf officials, players and gay rights groups, was also quoted as saying, "women are handicapped by having boobs. It's not easy for them to keep their left arm straight, and that's one of the tenets of the game."

LPGA Commissioner Charles Mechem told the newspaper he didn't think lesbianism was a significant issue or that it had impeded the growth of the LPGA.

Golfer Lauri Merton told the newspaper, "Wright is a jerk. He should be fired."

A statement from the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation (GLAAD) condemned Wright and said "without America's lesbian athletes, world-class women's sports wouldn't exist."

New Hormone Therapies May Help HIV/AIDS Patients

NEW YORK (PRNewswire) -- As thousands of HIV/AIDS patients enjoy a new lease on life through hormone therapies which are effective in combating wasting and hypogonadism (hormonal depletion), a panel of experts met in New York to discuss the known benefits and plot the future of these promising treatments.

"While many of the experimental therapies may hold promise for AIDS patients in the near term, hormonal therapies may prove to be the very best hope of extending and improving the quality of lives of HIV/AIDS patients world wide," said AIDS researcher Dave Purdy, who is co-hosting the forum.

To be held Wednesday May 17th at the New York University Law School, Tishman Auditorium, from 6 to 9 p.m., the panel will include many of the world's most distinguished experts. The panelists include: Dr. Walter F. Jekot, discoverer of anabolic steroid therapies in AIDS; Dr. Charles Kochakian, who invented anabolic steroids in 1935; Dr. Donald Kotler, St. Luke's Roosevelt, specialist in HIV wasting; Dr. Tadd Lazarus, Director Early Intervention, AIDS Center at St. Vincent's; Dr. Judith Rabkin, Columbia University researcher regarding psychological benefits of anabolics in HIV and Dr. Morris Schambelan, San Francisco General's researcher regarding growth hormone in AIDS.

In addition to demonstrating that anabolic steroid hormones are effective in reversing the loss of lean muscle mass that leads to reduced resistance to disease, the expert panel is calling for more research into the effects that anabolic steroids have on the human immune system. Preliminary indications are that anabolic steroids actually stimulate and support certain immune processes.

FBI Targets Gay Groups

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Reuter) - The FBI passed on information to public officials targeted by an AIDS activist group, but reports that the group was spied upon are "overstated," a Justice Department spokesman said late Monday.

The New York Daily News reported Monday that the FBI had monitored the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power, also known as ACT-UP, a group known for provocative protests. Justice Department spokesman Carl Stern said that the FBI had told targeted local and federal officials about FBI fears they would be smeared with blood and condoms in protest acts.

He declined to say how the FBI gathered the information. An ACT-UP spokesman denied that the group would condone or carry out such an act.

The Daily News reported that the FBI has a 199-page file on ACT-UP, and has also watched over other gay rights and AIDS organizations in New York such as Gay Men's Health Crisis, the nation's oldest AIDS service organization.

Sex Blamed On Promiscuous Genes

LONDON (Reuter) - A controversial Anglican bishop on Wednesday blamed adultery on bad genes, deepening a rift in the church over sex in the secular Nineties.

"God knew when he made us that he has given us a built-in sex drive to go out and sow our seeds. He has given us promiscuous genes," Bishop of Edinburgh Richard Holloway said.

"I think it would be wrong for the church to condemn people who have followed their instincts," he said in a speech on sex and Christianity, warning that humans were not designed to be faithful and that man was born to have many lovers.

Sexual politics have proved to be a moral minefield for the Anglican Church, Britain's state religion which faces dwindling congregations in an increasingly secular age. Traditionalists also battled reformists over the ordination of women priests.

Archbishop of Canterbury George Carey, leader of an organization already grappling with the moral dilemma of gays in the church, distanced himself from the outspoken bishop.

"Adultery is a sin. It is a failure to live up to the kind of standards that we expect from people," he said. "We are all weak, fallible people and fully in need of God's forgiveness. The Christian ethic offers hope and restoration after repentance."

Others were blunter in condemning the 61-year-old Holloway, who has also stirred controversy by suggesting that legalizing drugs and prostitution could help spread the curb of AIDS.

Ann Widdecombe, a Conservative parliamentarian who converted to Catholicism in protest over women priests, said: "This is an insult to the many millions of faithful husbands and wives who have not found it necessary to be acknowledged their homosexual orientation following an "outing" campaign by the gay rights group Outrage, which accuses the church of hypocrisy.

Gay Pride Parade Will Not See School Bus

MALDEN, Mass. (PRNewswire) -- Following is a statement by Commissioner of Education Robert V. Antonucci in response to questions about whether the Department of Education will sponsor buses to take students to and from the Boston Gay Pride Parade on June 10, 1995:

"After reviewing the pros and cons of the question and listening to parents and students, I have decided that the Department of Education is going ahead with our two-day retreat for high school students at Lasell College June 10 and 11 but will not be sponsoring or providing bus service to and from the Boston Gay Pride Parade being held on June 10.

There are two reasons. First, the retreat, funded by a small federal grant from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, is a workshop entirely planned and run by the Department of Education's AIDS/HIV and Safe Schools Program, while the parade is not under our jurisdiction. Second, I have heard from parents and others concerned about the Department using federal funds to pay for the buses to transport students to and from the parade, and others who have raised concerns about who would be liable for student safety at a parade which is not under the Department's control. I do not want these concerns about the parade to draw attention away from the two-day conference.

If parents of students decide they want their children to attend the parade, that is a decision they are, of course, free to make.

My decision to cancel the bus service to and from the parade does not

Preliminary indications are that anabolic steroids actually stimulate and support certain immune processes.

A nationwide misunderstanding regarding anabolic steroids, coupled with political opportunism, has created a climate of fear regarding these drugs that has delayed the broad acceptance of this useful therapy for HIV/AIDS patients.

The use of anabolic steroids has been under a cloud of unfounded fear since several highly-publicized incidents, including Canadian Olympic star Ben Johnson's loss of his gold medal in 1988.

Political pressure prompted the unprecedented passage of the Anabolic Steroid Control Act of 1990, in which the medication was reclassified from a Class 5 to a Class 3 controlled substance, despite opposition from the American Medical Association as well as a number of medical experts. It was the first time that Congress had reclassified a medication to a controlled substance without following the appropriate FDA guidelines established since the early

ACT-UP seeks to promote AIDS awareness and pushes for increased government spending, and has employed such tactics as heckling politicians at rallies to gain attention.

The group responded angrily to the Daily News report.

"The Clinton administration is using the Federal Bureau of Investigation to infiltrate, undermine, and discredit its most visible critics among AIDS advocates," ACT-UP member Steve Michael said in a statement. The FBI could not be reached for immediate comment.

Although the extent of government investigation of the group remains unclear, public officials have not hidden their distaste for some of ACT-UP's protest antics.

"They come to my home and throw condoms around and behave in a very bad fashion," former President George Bush said in 1992 about protests outside his Maine summer home.

Scientist Steve Jones, author of "The Language of Genes," attacked the bishop on another front, saying Holloway had made "callow and half-informed scientific judgments."

Carey, spiritual leader of 70 million Anglicans around the world, has thrown down the gauntlet to sexual reformers in the church, warning that bishops would not be stampeded into changing their policy on homosexuality.

He has dismissed as unfounded any suggestions that the Church might soon allow practicing homosexuals to be ordained priests or accept same-sex relationships as equal to marriage.

His comments followed the promotion to the church's second most senior post of Bishop David Hope, who recently described his sexuality as being "in a grey area" though he was celibate.

Several other senior churchmen have Pride Parade being held on June 10.

If parents of students decide they want their children to attend the parade, that is a decision they are, of course, free to make.

My decision to cancel the bus service to and from the parade does not undermine our commitment to providing a serious and quality two-day statewide leadership conference for students and adults involved in issues of concern to gay and lesbian students.

The workshop, which will include 85 students (who attend with parental permission) and 15 adults will give these leaders additional tools and resources they need to return to their school districts and contribute to a climate of safety for all students. The Department's AIDS/HIV and Safe Schools Program do extraordinarily high quality work with students, parents, schools and communities in addressing issues of discrimination, harassment, health and violence in communities and public schools. This retreat is important for the students and adults who attend it, because it offers an organized, safe environment for discussion and information gathering among gay, lesbian, and heterosexual students, and adults supervisors."

"JEFFREY" To Hit Lesbian/Gay Film Fest

NEW YORK (Variety) - "Jeffrey," the Orion Films version of Paul Rudnick's Off Broadway hit comedy, is expected to make its world bow in a sneak preview at next month's seventh annual New York Lesbian & Gay Film Festival. A spokesman said Orion neither would confirm nor deny, but sources said the film will make its premiere in a lineup that includes several other prominent pictures.

Fine Line Features' "The Incredibly True Adventure of Two Girls in Love," directed by Maria Maggenti, and Miramax Films' release of Wally White's "Lie Down With Dogs" will get their Gotham premieres at the June 1-11 festival.

The 26-feature lineup reflects a stronger slate of commercial prospects than past editions.

"The festival has grown up considerably over the past few years," executive director Wellington Love said. "We're still here for the emerging independent filmmaker, but we're also really excited about being a launching pad for major releases."

Also in the lineup is the Samuel Goldwyn release of Barry Shils' "Wigstock: The Movie," getting its New York premiere as the opening-night picture, accompanied by Peggy Rajski's 1995 Oscar-winning short "Trevor."

The "Jeffrey" sneak is a particular coup for the festival. Rudnick's strong reputation as a scripter ("The Addams Family" movies), the play's popularity and the movie's ensemble cast (Steven Weber, Patrick Stewart, Nathan Lane, Sigourney Weaver) make it one of the more anticipated films of the festival.

Britain's "Absolutely Fabulous" series and "Alkali, Iowa," a short film starring Mary Beth Hurt and directed by Mark Christopher ("Dead Boy's Club"). Wiktor Grodecki's "Not Angels, but Angels," a Czech documentary on that country's teen sex industry, will make its New York bow at the festival.

Titles of the fest's official feature film lineup are "Apart From Hugh," "A Litany for Survival," "Ballot Measure 9," "Black Is ... Black Ain't," "Buddies," "Change the Frame," "Costa Brava," "Dance Girl Dance," "Days of Pentecost," "Devotion," "Diamond Hour," "Heaven's a Drag," "I Like You, I Like You Very Much," "Irresistible Impulse," "Portrait of a Girl at the End of the 1960s in Brussels," "Sister My Sister," "Skin Deep," "Lie Down With Dogs," "Midnight Dancers," "Not Angels, but Angels," "The Incredibly True Adventures of Two Girls in Love," "Thin Ice," "Tokyo Cowboys," "Under Heat," "Wigstock: The Movie" and a "special sneak preview."

Police Advertise In Gay Paper

LONDON (Reuter) - British police are to advertise in a gay newspaper in a bid to recruit more officers and squash allegations that they are against homosexuals.

"We want to dispel the myth that we are anti-gay, and advertising in this way is a step in that direction," police spokesman Mark Lamb said on Wednesday.

The advertisements are to be placed in the Pink Paper, which circulates widely in Britain's gay and lesbian community.

strong slate of commercial prospects than past editions.

"The festival has grown up considerably over the past few years," executive director Wellington Love said. "We're still here for the emerging independent filmmaker, but we're also really excited about being a launching pad for major releases."

Also in the lineup is the Samuel Goldwyn release of Barry Shils' "Wigstock: The Movie," getting its New York premiere as the opening-night picture, accompanied by Peggy Rajski's 1995 Oscar-winning short "Trevor."

The "Jeffrey" sneak is a particular coup for the festival. Rudnick's strong reputation as a scripter ("The Addams Family" movies), the play's popularity and the movie's ensemble cast (Steven Weber, Patrick Stewart, Nathan Lane, Sigourney Weaver) make it one of the more anticipated films of the festival.

Picture, helmed by Christopher Ashley (who directed the play), will be released under the Orion Classics banner in New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco on Aug. 4, and then expand Aug. 18.

Getting its New York premiere is the late Marlon Riggs' documentary "Black Is ... Black Ain't." Lynne Femie and Aerlyn Weissman's Canadian entry "Fiction and Other Truths," about writer Jane Rule, receives its U.S. premiere at the festival.

In all, 157 films and videos, including the 26 feature films, will be screened at the Joseph Papp Public Theater.

Included among the video and short films will be episodes of the upcoming (and final) season of

"Midnight Dancers," "Not Angels, but Angels," "The Incredibly True Adventures of Two Girls in Love," "Thin Ice," "Tokyo Cowboys," "Under Heat," "Wigstock: The Movie" and a "special sneak preview."

The Biology of Relatedness: Genetics, Statistics & the Stingy Gene
Rescriptum Athenadori N<sup>o</sup>. 1: In Cultus
Prænotionem Generis
Part II - by Athenadorus

The cells of humans each contain 46 chromosomes. When the egg and sperm combine to create another human, each of those brings a set of 23 chromosomes from either parent. Each chromosome is one from the pair of chromosomes that parent had received from its parents. At first sight, this mixing of sources might imply a very high degree of variability, as the number of sets of 23 that can be drawn from the chromosomes involved is 8,388,608.

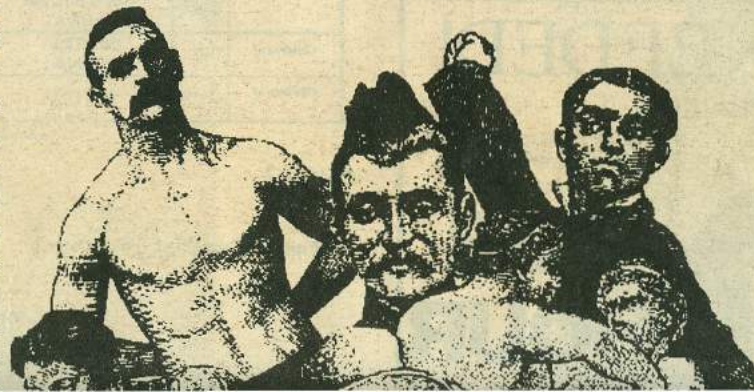

However, because chimpanzees and bonobos share more than 98% of our (nuclear) genetic material, less than 2% of that variation must account for the characteristics of being human. Fewer than 167,772 chromosomal variations-worth of genetic-differentiation would account for all that it means to be human. This is not unreasonable in view of the enormous number of genes involved, for the vast majority of those must be static across our species. Otherwise, odd body arrangements, vastly unusual chemical products and sequences, extraordinary colors and behaviors would regularly appear at random among the human population, indeed among all species. This simply does not happen: the overwhelming majority of genes must code for the basic processes of life. Humans digest plant matter in the same chemical way cows do; human muscles are physically constructed identically to and work in the same way and from the same control mechanisms as those of frogs. The relatively few genes left over are those that must code for those things that separate us from our nearest relatives, the bonobos and chimpanzees.

Two percent of the 46 chromosomes averages out to just less than one chromosome, actually 0.92 chromosome. Thus, mathematically, the genetic information shared amongst siblings must, by default, be extremely similar, if it is not, in fact, very nearly identical. If it did not maintain its family/species identity, we would have other family, other species, characteristics appearing at random among groups of siblings. Because this does not happen, we may say with reassurance that the

PART II

OF A 2-PART SERIES

The following graphs portray the most highly exaggerated case, in which the chromosomes of each parent remain distinct and are passed to their offspring as a unit. They portray the extremes: both most related and least related possibilities in each scenario are revealed on the same diagram. To keep the charts simple, the offspring listed in generations  $\delta$  and  $\gamma$  are limited to 2 females and 2 males. The chromosomes each receives are indicated as unique, as delineated by the four 'canonical' possibilities given in the X- and Y-chromosome inheritance chart given above.

Although such arrangements implying that the chromosomes of common source are more likely to progress into the gamete together are not highly likely, they are not at all impossible. Indeed, the physical, anecdotal, evidence is that some genes seem to be more mobile, or more chemically 'enthusiastic', so that they are the ones most likely to be passed on to egg or sperm. It is easily discernible how much alike most brothers and sisters look and act. Although this may be an expression of statistical probability, it may also reflect the more engenderable nature of certain patterns of parental chromosomes.

Along with this, the quite often extremely similar physiques and activity-patterns of siblings are an obvious and unmistakable manifestation of the all-pervading effects of their shared, identical maternal mitochondrial DNA.

(Editor's Note:

The following graphs outline the genetic traces within a family line. However, using the newly argued thought that homosexuality is genetically based, the same genetic tree can be used.

What is interesting is that "Moral Majority" has not tried to use this hypotheses to prove or disprove that homosexuality is in fact genetically oriented, but relied on the Judeo-Christian ethics of abhorrent behavior.)

Graph 1 shows that, on an extrapolated average, in 50% of cases, there exists a possibility that an aunt will be as closely genetically related to her sisters' children as she is to her own children.

This also reveals that in 25% of the situations, there is a possibility that an uncle will be Part of the relatively small amount of genetic material that establishes the individual is carried on the sex-specific chromosomes. Because of this, and because these are the most widely known chromosomes, they are used in the following graphs. Although they are used specifically, they may also be seen to represent that small amount of nuclear genetic material whose effects are those that establish the species-specific effects leading to humans.

This also reveals that in 25% of the situations, there is a possibility that an uncle will be as closely related to his sisters' children as he is or would be to his own.

Aunts and uncles always possess the same mitochondrial DNA as the children of their sisters.

Graph 2 indicates that, on an extrapolated average, in 25% of cases there exists a possibility that an aunt will be as closely genetically related to one of her brother's children as she is to her own children. However, this does not include the mitochondrial DNA, which she does not share with the offspring of her male siblings.

This also imparts in fact that in 50% of the cases the possibility of close relation exists between uncle and nephews, while there is virtually no chance that an uncle will be as closely related to his brothers' daughters as he is or would be to his own.

Because of the inheritance pattern of mitochondrial DNA, in absolute terms, no male is genetically as closely related to his own children as they are to their mother.

STARGAZING

GEMINI: Your sexual appetite has been changing and you are now going to get what you've been seeking. Don't complain when you get that ultra-full feeling.

CANCER: Your desperate pleas for sex have been ignored by everyone. You need to change that stuck recording. Try a different approach and stop whining!

LEO: When you get your claws into a person, you have a hard time letting go. Stop trying to make a lover out of everyone you have sex with. A harrem is expensive and hard to keep.

VIRGO: Your love life is about to take a nose dive if you don't watch what you do. Don't withhold your affections and you may be able to turn this around.

LIBRA: This warmer weather has made you so horny you don't know what to do. Well, just flaunt it and see what happens. A little bare skin might help and never hurts.

SCORPIO: It appears like you are going to be getting more than you bargained for. Watch yourself or your tail-side might just smart for a while.

SAGITTARIUS: You will find some kinky uses for the sun tan oil that you purchased for the summer season. Just watch out for the sand as it can wreak havoc.

CAPRICORN: A sojourn from your normal routine is approaching. I see something with bars, chains, and other "toys." Oh! What fun!

AQUARIUS: Something shocking is going to happen in the very near future. Just make sure you're not standing in water when it happens!

PISCES: You are headed into a period of endless tail chasing. You will not have much luck unless you turn and run the other direction.

ARIES: The tables are going to be turned on you and you will be the one that will have to take what is being dished out. Relax and enjoy! It's your turn in the sling!

TAURUS: The approaching full moon is going to have an effect on your sex life. Something with night air, moonlight, towels, and lots of lube!

Welcome back to "In the Mix." It's going to be a slow week for music this time around. So let's get busy!

Three new records from the "Cutting" crew this week!

Rochelle Fleming returns with a double-pack titled Suffer (the Consequences) with mixes ranging from classic house to urban hip-hop. This record really marks a great comeback for Ms. Fleming.

Next, Millennium makes their debut on "Cutting" with the Vol 1 - E.P. Three cuts on this E.P., titled Everybody Reach,

Mell - Oh - Dee and Movin' Me. Three very different styles of music including one very Real 2 Real sounding mix.

Finally, The Balls of London return with Street Sense 2. The regular garage shuffle house groove that rounds out this package from "Cutting" Records.

Next, Henry Street Records releases their first compilation which contains a slew of hits from the past year, including and incredible edit of the 14 minute (+) single The Bomb by The Bucketheads.

Well, so long for this week. Until next time.....

MONTROSE MADNESS!

INSIDE THE FROOT LOOP

Hola! ¿Que pasa? Well for those of you who missed all the celebrations, Cinco de Mayo was a blast. We went over to Chances and just had to try their Luge. For those who have never done a shot in this way you just have to try it next time they do it. Talk about a real COLD shot. We caught Marlene and Cora, and a few others, doing their shots. Watch out and don't get your tongue stuck to the ice!

Next we made a stop into Bacchus II for a quick cocktail. Only we were having so much fun we ended up staying for more than just one. We don't get into Bacchus much, but they have a fabulous crowd of regulars and we'd like to recommend it for those women who want a friendly bar with some good entertainment.

We then made our way down Westheimer to Club 403, we got there in the middle of their show and we're sorry we didn't see it from the beginning. We caught Lawna Blake on stage doing her impersonation of Cher, which she does flawlessly, right down to the attitude.

After seeing some of the show, we hit the streets again and went over to the Montrose Mining Company. They had a full house

Sunday we hit Splash Day - Galveston which was not as crowded or as festive as in past years and the weather was not helping. It threatened to rain all day and that put a damper on the crowd that did show. The weather, and the restriction of NO ALCOHOL on Galveston's beaches put a real crimp in the festivities. Most of the people we talked to were over on Bolivar peninsula and we were told that was where the real party was. Guess we'll have to check that out this fall at the end of season Splash party. The one real good thing about Splash Day was that with the overcast we didn't get sunburned, which we would have been if it had been like the Westheimer Street Festival, where we got scorched.

We made it back to Houston early enough to finish the afternoon by making to bar rounds. We went to E/Js to unwind and had a good time with the bartender and the crowd. We had a couple of cocktails to get us in the mood and then started tramping around the rest of Montrose.

The following weekend we were out again and running through the bars like there was no tomorrow. We made a stop in at the Past Time and caught their new

After seeing some of the show, we hit the streets again and went over to the Montrose Mining Company. They had a full house and some gorgeous male dancers. We stayed for a couple of cocktails and then made the last minute dash to Pacific Street. We wanted to see the Caged Heat dancers and all the rest of those hunky men on the dance floor.

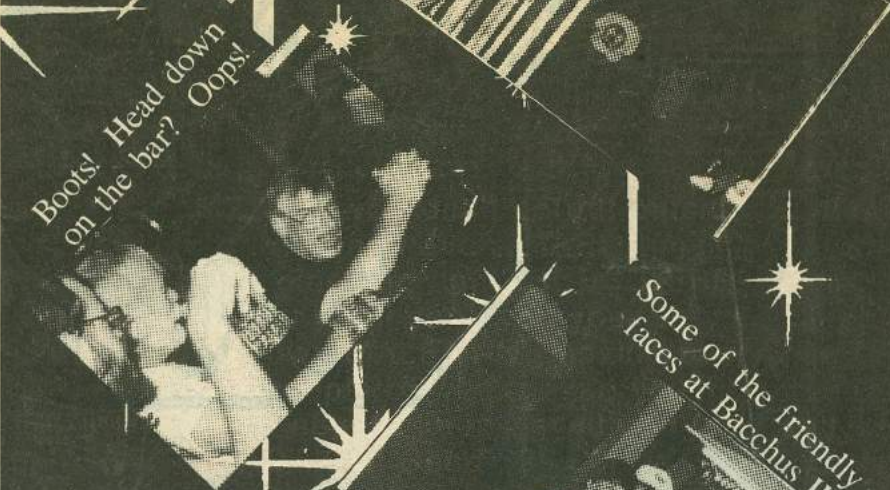

We managed to get a couple of pictures of the dancers at Pacific Street, only we couldn't get their names. Guess they're shy that way. But who cares about names, just shake, wriggle and bounce it. We almost got him to expose it, but, oh well, guess we'll just have to hire him for a private showing.

Having been out most of the evening we headed for home to get some rest.

Serve that Attitude!

Check that out this fall at the end of season Splash party. The one real good thing about Splash Day was that with the overcast we didn't get sunburned, which we would have been if it had been like the Westheimer Street Festival, where we got scorched.

The following weekend we were out again and running through the bars like there was no tomorrow. We made a stop in at the Past Time and caught their new bartender Dan. He had a real festive party going and we had a fabulous time. Guess we'll have to make more stops at the Past Time in the future.

We then went over to the 611 for a few cocktails and watched some basketball. Go Rockets!!!! Talk about Clutch City all over again. I don't know if Houston can stand it again.

We finished the night by making a quick stop into the Ripcord. Talk about packed. All those half naked men! Guess you'd just have to be there to understand!

Sunday we hit Mary's and saw Devin and Scotty behind the bar. We were real impressed with Scotty's window display. They have a real friendly staff and some real tasty drinks. And don't forget that this coming Thursday, May 25th, Mary's will be celebrating their 25th anniversary! Their new limited edition 25th anniversary T-shirts went on sale on Sunday, May 14th. We stayed to see the Mother of Montrose contest. To Lady Victoria Lust; Honey, I'm am proud of you working the crowd in that 90 degree heat! There was some real impressive entertainment by the contestants, and I really enjoyed Ms. J.J.'s rendition of Patsy Cline's "I Fall to Pieces". Loosing all those body parts was just hilarious. For those who missed the competition and show, the new Mother of Montrose is none other than our famous Rainbo de Klown. Congratulations!

We then ran over to the Brazos River Bottom for a couple of cocktails. God we love it when cowboys start boot-skootin'. One of these days I'll have to learn how to two-step, but knowing my luck I'll probably fall over my two left feet.

We then did the dash over to the Venture N and caught the crowd there. For those who don't know it, the Venture N has a Sunday buffet. All donations go to support Stone Soup. There is always a surprise in what Hal and Jim serve up, and plenty of it!

Well we've had a great time over the past two weeks and we hope to be able to continue our expanded bar coverage. I can't get everywhere, but can try, I just need to know what you're doing so I don't overlook your activities. I do hope that the bar owners or managers will call our offices and let us know what special activities they have planned.

Until next time.....Gotcha!

Ida Poppters' HOMO SOAP

Dallas

"Vacation, Mother's Day and Dish, Dish, Dish"

Well kids, I'm back from the Sunshine State. Have you ever been to an all gay beach? Well, now they told me about this, and me being raised in the "Baptist South", I just couldn't believe it existed. Now I've been around the block a few times, even traded in a few cars, but this was an experience every self-respecting homo should have. I don't know if it was the 10 man scene just off shore (and no, I'm not talking about a row boat), or the Barbies Dream Castle that two queens had built! Complete with landscaping! And the thong bikini's? Now I'll be the first to admit I'm not all that in a thong bikini, but I saw more crack than you ever will in East Dallas! These people are proud of far too much on the backside and not enough on the front side! I won't say it was all like that. I saw a few oranges that would get the Florida Seal of Approval! They certainly got inspector 60's approval! I need to thank the people from Frankly Scarlet in Fort Walton Beach for a wonderful time. If you're ever in Florida go by and visit the bar!

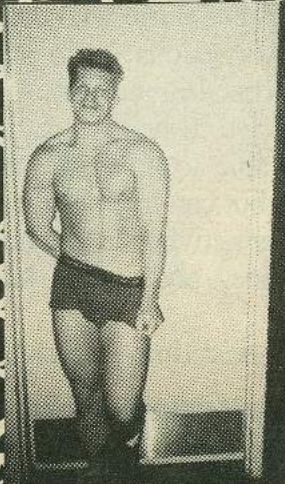

On a more somber note, I want to express condolences to the Miss America Pageant and Norma Kristie Inc. on the loss of the newly crowned Miss Gay America, Romona Leger. This was the first Miss America to expire during her reign. Good luck to Dallas' Patti Le Plae Safe as she assumes this prestigious role.

I think it's time I clarify an issue. While Omni 2000, our photographers, is a separate company, we will recommend and work with them in every capacity where the gay community is concerned. Any Questions? Call me.

Razzle Dazzle is once again upon us. This year's event is planned on the street of Cedar Springs where I remember attending my first, back in ..... Well never mind! It should be lots of fun with beer stands just like Halloween.

David Carroll &
BACKSTREET Patrons

Wanna see my candy?

Absolutely Fabulous!

I hope everyone had a great Mother's Day and send kudos to Channel 5 for featuring Dallas' Gay Mother Jan Barton last Saturday night. My mom came in unexpectedly last weekend, giving me no time to de-drag the house.

Now I'll be the first to admit I'm not all that in a thong bikini, but I saw more crack than you ever will in East Dallas! These people are proud of far too much on the backside and not enough on the front side! I won't say it was all like that. I saw a few oranges that would get the Florida Seal of Approval! They certainly got inspector 60's approval! I need to thank the people from Frankly Scarlet in Fort Walton Beach for a wonderful time. If you're ever in Florida go by and visit the bar!

On a more somber note, I want to express condolences to the Miss America Pageant and Norma Kristie Inc. on the loss of the newly crowned Miss Gay America, Romona Leger. This was the first Miss America to expire during her reign. Good luck to Dallas' Patti Le Plae Safe as she assumes this prestigious role.

I think it's time I clarify an issue. While Omni 2000, our photographers, is a separate company, we will recommend and work with them in every capacity where the gay community is concerned. Any Questions? Call me.

Razzle Dazzle is once again upon us. This year's event is planned on the street of Cedar Springs where I remember attending my first, back in ..... Well never mind! It should be lots of fun with beer stands just like Holloween.

David Carroll & BACKSTREET Patrons

Absolutely Fabulous!

Wanna see my candy?

I hope everyone had a great Mother's Day and send kudos to Channel 5 for featuring Dallas' Gay Mother Jan Barton last Saturday night. My mom came in unexpectedly last weekend, giving me no time to de-drag the house. My roommate, the incomparable Trella Thomas, has many plaques displayed through our home. I hurried my mom out for shopping and to get her checked in her hotel room. After a busy day of shopping (and brewing) she, out of no where, asked me if I was I an entertainer! Well now, I had to stop and think exactly what she'd meant. Did she see a G-string, wig, or my column? There were so many answers to that question. I carry a pager....did she think I carried entertainment in small plastic zip bags? Thank God she was referring to the drag, because I easily got out of that, being my roommate has no eyebrows! I'm waiting for the call to come that she's ready to see a show!

Backstreet is gearing up for Mr. Gay Dallas and Mr. Gay Metroplex on June 3rd at 10 pm. Sheri Powers hosts with arched eyebrowed Trella Thomas as special guest. By the way, if you take a date over to the Backstreet, have Stormy Knightz serve the cocktails. The other bartender seems to be turned on by relationships. Your's! Hmmmmm.....

Across the street at the Brick, they're gearing up for the White Party this Saturday, May 20th, at 9 pm. I'm sure it will be a HOT time. You'll catch me there! I can tell summer is here again because my parking lot (adjacent to the Brick) is becoming cruisy on the weekend nights! Time to walk the pussy!

Club Body Center's Sunday Cookouts are back in the afternoons! Hot bodies and spicy meat? Now that's a concept! This gives "special" sauce on a "bun" a HOLE new meaning! We met the new sexy manager there a few weeks ago. So by and check it out!

Rumor has it that Thursday night at the Village Station is the place to be, if you're not into beef but enjoy chicken! However, I beg to differ. I found a full combination of beef and chicken the other night! My sister, Val, stayed in town this past week from the Miss USA Pageant. I've heard once Val leaves town she forgets her home phone number. Is that a form of dislexia? or disJohnnya? Hmmm.....

Speaking of pageants, I need to clarify that in last issue's column I wrote Miss America in Review Show, NOT pageant! Sorry, not everyone at Maleman understands the Drag world!

Mr. Gulf Coast Drummer is coming with introduction of contestants on Friday, June 3rd at the Eagle. If you're looking for fun, and a gal called Marge, Sunday night is the town Levis Contest with $69 going to the winner, beginning at 10 pm, also at the Eagle.

The Santa Fe Bar and Grill is just about ready to open! It's on the Springs, just next to the Blackeyed Pea, so it's easy to stumble over and get a cock tail! HA!

Well, it's time for me to sign off and put another issue to bed (among other things), but before I go, I want to thank a good friend of mine, Michael Powell, for the covershot of the Brick Bar's White Party. Michael is in charge of the only all-gay talent agency located here in Dallas. They've grown so much, they're moving into a new building this weekend! Congratulations guys! Look for more hot men from this wonderful agency!

HOMO Rod Stiffner's LOVERS

Love
Guide*

May 19 - Summer's temperatures have arrived early and you need to get a new wardrobe to beat the heat. Take your partner along and get their opinion and maybe you can help them with theirs. Keep in mind that you want something that both of you will enjoy.

May 20 - Spend today at the pool, seashore or nearby lake. Make sure you take along your sunscreen. When you get to the water side, find as secluded a spot as possible and then let your partner help in applying the lotion. This is a good time for get a mild body rub, just remember you are in public and we don't want anything to happen that might get us in trouble. Save that for later, when you get back home.

May 21 - The term breakfast comes to us from the ancient practice of fasting over the "holy" days or sabbath. This morning make your breakfast a break from your fast on sex. Show your partner that there are things that can be done in the morning other than cooking, but that eating is still on the menu.

May 22 - It's time to pull out all those stops that you have been putting on your relationship. Discuss with your partner those things that you would like to have done, and haven't. Let your partner explain the same from their point of view. You may find that there are several interesting things you both would have liked to do, but were afraid to let the other one know.

May 23 - This evening when you get home from work, or your partner comes home from work, give them a long, hard kiss. Delay dinner for some relaxing before-dinner "snack." Use your imagination to "cook" something interesting. You might even enjoy this tasty treat so much you forget having dinner.

May 24 - When was the last time you shaved, or had shaved, your pubis. Most people find this activity exciting and others find the clean shaven area an immense turn-on. Try this tonight and you may find you keep it up for quite some time.

May 25 - Which sexual objective is more important, Quality or Quantity? We all would prefer both, but in fact we usually get one or the other. Youth and inexperience tend to give us quantity with more "at bat" times and those who have more experience know how to sustain a prolonged love session. However, with practice one can achieve the quality and quantity one desires. Why not practice this evening.

May 26 - Most people know where their own erogenous zones are and which are more susceptible to stimulation. Surprisingly most do not know where those areas are on their partners. They have found a few and have never bothered to explore the potential of other areas. Tonight try this little experiment. During foreplay, explore those areas of your partner's body that you haven't tried and see who long it takes you to have them writhing in ecstasy.

May 27 - Tonight, when you go out, try going as bare as you dare. Several clubs have evenings where the try to host this type of activity and everyone expects to see just that. Tonight give yourselves

May 27 - Tonight, when you go out, try going as bare as you dare. Several clubs have evenings where they try to host this type of activity and everyone expect to see just that. Tonight give yourselves the freedom of expression without being a member of a crowd doing the same. You might just find that you have more to offer than you expected. And the sight of your partner doing the same may just lead to something even more unexpected.

May 28 - Most people forget that just holding ones partner can be just as reassuring and pleasurable as the act of having sex. Spend this evening holding and cuddling your partner and let them know just how much you love them.

May 29 - Sex talk can add a lot to your lovemaking sessions. Most people are turned on by a certain amount of "dirty" talk during sex. Tonight while making love, describe what your going to do, or what you want done, in the most graphic details. Show your partner that you're willing to live up to the things you're saying and you might be surprised at their response.

May 30 - Spend a few minutes telling your partner just how pleased you were by a certain night of lovemaking the two of you shared - and see how eager they become to relive that session. This type of sex talk is both flattering and arousing to most, and soon you'll both be eager to do more than just talk about it.

May 31 - The U.S. Copyright Law was enacted on this date in 1970, so why not celebrate by breaking - or at least bending - it. Copy an erotic love poem, give it to your partner, and give them a kiss along with it, as you tell them it is your own creation. You may have trouble writing much more than your own name, and your partner may know it and make you admit where you got the poem, but your partner will appreciate the thought.

June 1 - Warm weather is here to stay and it is time for a little summer fun! If you have a secluded balcony, or enclosed yard you can ask your partner to join you for a little sunbathing. Have the bottle of tanning lotion on hand, and don't hesitate to mention that they will get a more even tan if they wear the most revealing bathing suit they have. Privacy permitting, your partner may just choose to remove it altogether.

What Makes a Bar Leather?

Two of the many complaints that I've heard from the under 35 leather crowd over years about the Leather community are "where are all the REAL Leather men?" and that the "GOOD Leather bars have all closed." The operative words have always been "real or good". Also note that the capitolization, or lack thereof, of the letter "L" in Leather is intentional.

It's true that the old Leather S&M/sex bars have passed into history, but they were only a fraction of the leather bars that were available to the Leather community.

Some of the names of the old bars give the older Leather crowd some pleasant memories. Such places as the Gold Coast in Chicago, the Mineshaft in New York City, the bar Leather is the attitude of the patrons. The Leather crowd itself will determine if they will support the bar as Leather.

Being "Leather" is more than just wearing cowhide. Along with the clothes goes an attitude. What most people are really saying when they bemoan the loss of the "old" Leather bars is not that the bars have disappeared, but that the Leather "attitude" is missing, or the new leather attitude does not fit the image they are looking for.

Surprisingly, there are Leather bars where Leather is seldom worn by the patrons and as strange as it may seem to some, there were/are Leather bars that have an enforced dress code where none of the staff are really into the Leather scene.

The dress code at these bars is enforced not by a doorman but by the patrons of the bar. The bar staff will serve you, but the rest of the customers will make you feel so unwelcomed that you will decide to leave. In other cases, I have even seen patrons ask another patron to leave because the person did not "belong."

In other instances, I have been in leather bars where everyone was wearing their leathers and the most of the patrons acted as if they belonged on the nearest grade school playground. Others have had an attitude that more belonged at the nearest body building center, everyone was trying to impress everyone else with how good they looked.

Next time you're in a leather bar take note of the attitudes you see. Are they what you expect, or are they out of character with the image of the bar. Also, check your attitude and see if your's is supporting the bars image.

The leather community is just as varied as the entire gay community and you get back what you put in. If you want to see a change you must start that change with yourself.

Until next time. Good hunting and Play Safe!

Some of the names of the old bars give the older Leather crowd some pleasant memories. Such places as the Gold Coast in Chicago, the Mineshaft in New York City, the Triangle in Denver or the Eagle - San Francisco. Some of these are still open for business, or have reopened under new ownership, but they are just a glint of what they were in the late '70's and early '80's.

The true Leather bar has always been a place where the Leather crowd could go to relax and feel at ease with others of the same interests. A place to meet, talk, discuss new inovations of Leather sex, and just have a good time.

What makes a bar a Leather bar is not the owner, manager, or bar staff. Anyone can open a bar and state that it is a leather bar, but that does not make it so. What makes the Leather bars that have an enforced dress code where none of the staff are really into the Leather scene.

The dress code at these bars is enforced not by a doorman but by the patrons of the bar. The bar staff will serve you, but the rest of the customers will make you feel so unwelcomed that you will decide to leave. In other cases, I have even seen patrons ask another patron to leave because the person did not "belong."

In other instances, I have been in leather bars where everyone was wearing their leathers and the most of the patrons acted as if they belonged on the nearest grade school playground. Others have had an attitude that more belonged at the nearest body building center, everyone was trying to impress everyone else with how good they looked.

In these instances the social attitude that one expects to find was missing. Most patrons were not intersted in the Leather aura but were more interested in impressing someone with how much money they could spend to dress like a "REAL" leather man.

What one wears in a Leather bar is not as important as the attitude one imparts. Granted, cross dressing and then going into any Leather or leather bar is considered wrong, by just about any Leather person's concept, but it does happen. Clothing does not make the image as concrete as the attitude that is portrayed by the person themselves.

me. I can take it. I want it!

- |   |                       |
|---|-----------------------|
| 1 lb. medium shrimp, shelled & deveined           | 4 oz. snow peas       |
| 2 green onions, chopped                           | Pinch of Salt         |
| 3 garlic cloves, chopped                          | Pinch of white pepper |
| 2 dried red chilies, chopped                      | 2 tsp. sesame oil     |
| 2 egg whites, lightly beaten                      | 1/2 c. catsup         |
| 1 slice fresh ginger, chopped                     | 1/4 c. cornstarch     |
| 3 Tbsp. soy sauce                                 | 3 c. peanut oil       |
| 2 bell peppers, cut intointo 1 inch triangles | 3 Tbsp. sugar         |
|   | 1/2 tsp. salt         |

Sprinkle shrimp with salt and pepper. Combine egg whites and sesame oil; blend well. Add shrimp and stir to coat. Let stand 3 to 5 minutes. Dust with cornstarch until well coated. Heat peanut oil in wok over high heat. Fry shrimp until crisp, about 3 minutes. Remove and drain. Fry green pepper and snow peas 30 seconds. Remove and drain. Pour off all but 2 Tbls. of oil. Add green onion, garlic, chili, and ginger. Stir-fry 20 seconds. Stir in catsup, soy sauce, sugar, and salt. Bring to boil. Add shrimp, green pepper, and snow peas and stir until coated. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.
