

Dedication

In the 1990s we were privileged to perform at least six times with HeartSong, Houston's Women's Chorus. We worked together on concerts in Austin, New Orleans, and Houston, and HeartSong was our special guest three times at the Wortham Center. These extraordinary women awed us with their talent, inspired us with their passion, and lifted us with their boundless love for each other and for us. Their noteworthy history included performing at the inauguration of Texas Governor Ann Richards and hosting the Sixth National Women's Choral Festival with its gala concert at Jones Hall. A few years ago, HeartSong disbanded, leaving a void in our community and in our hearts that remains unfilled. Our last major concert together was during Pride Week 1995. Earlier this year, in concluding HeartSong's corporate business, the chorus made a substantial donation to the Gay Men's Chorus of Houston. We would gladly forfeit that donation many times over to have HeartSong back with us.

We dedicate this performance to our sisters, the women who were HeartSong.

We love you and we miss you.
